WOMAN AND HER HOME.

VISION.

NEEDED NOWHERE MORE THAN IN THE HOME.

TO Peter Bell the primrose was but a primrose; to the poet to whom we owe this information the meanest flower that blows could bring thoughts that often lay too deep for tears: in what does the difference between them consist?

For want of a more exact definition, we may say, in vision; and then comes the further question: What do we mean by vision?

Vision is the power of seeing the whole, not merely the surface; of grasping a fact together with its implications; our idea with its ramifications; of correlating facts which appear detached; of recognising latent possibilities.

Vision is not the property of poets alone; it belongs to the pioneer and adventurer, to the inventor and explorer; above all, perhaps, to those who have faith in human kind. To possess it is to have the power of looking fixedly at the reverse of the tapestry in full assurance that the pattern on the other side is coming right.

On the material side it helps the creative artist to all the statue in the stone, the writer to picture the glowing garden in the barren waste, or the stately palace where now stones lie scattered.

Nowhere is vision more needed than in the home; even in composing a menu, in decorating a room, in making a garment, it is a great help to know beforehand how it will taste or look, as the case may be. "How did you know?" say the uninitiate; we cannot tell, it is intuition, perhaps; possibly the fruit of inheritance, but there it is. The exact choice of a ribbon or a buckle, the foreknowledge of just where furniture will fit and just where it will show to advantage in a now empty room, the perfect flavouring for a dish—in such matters one succeeds where another blunders, and the only explanation is that the successful one has vision.

In dealing with our fellow beings, vision comes to our aid at every turn; it helps us to see their possibilities, their limitations, their point of view. In particular, those who have to do with children are lost without it; it helps us to perceive not only the goal at which to aim, but the means of attaining it.

Never has vision in national and civic affairs been more sorely wanted than here and now in Ireland; the work of reconstruction, which will strain the powers of every man and woman in the country, is impossible without the guiding impulse of vision. It is not a matter for leaders only. We have had in the past far too much of the error of expecting them to do for us what it is our business to do for ourselves; it is your business and mine to see Ireland as she may be, and so to work that she may be as in our moments of vision we see her.

"THE MONOGRAM."

MONOGRAMS are appearing in most unexpected places this season. Handkerchiefs can be decorated in a variety of ways with the owner's initials interwoven to form a border monogram all the way round. What at first sight appears to be merely a decorative pattern, on closer examination proves to be a clever arrangement of monograms.

These effective borders can be cut out and stencilled on silk or crêpe-de-chine, and some really beautiful colour effects for a fancy handkerchief are possible.

Jumpers of thick white silk or crêpe-de-chine look particularly distinctive with a nicely-worked monogram on the breast or hip pocket, and the other day I saw a girl in a simple little shirt blouse, with fairly deep Peter Pan collar. What from a distance appeared to be a neat design on the corners of the collar proved to be her initials, intertwined and worked in white silk. The same idea can be carried out with charming effect on "undies," specially if worked with a dainty ribbon.

Tray-cloths, five o'clock afternoon cloths, and tea-napkins can be made to look charming, and on house linen it is better to always have the monogram worked in white, unless the linen is coloured, when it should match.

GRAMOPHONES.

HOW TO KEEP THEM IN GOOD CONDITION.

NOW that every home possesses a gramophone of some sort, a few hints as to the preservation and care necessary to keep the instrument in good condition will not be out of place in these columns.

Gramophones, like all machines need care and attention, but many folk seem to think that as long as the machine is wound up and the needle set in motion that is all that is required. Then, when any small thing goes wrong and the instrument is not working as well or as clearly as might be expected, they blame the gramophone.

The life of every gramophone, whatever its make, can be prolonged by the observance of a few simple precautions. If the machine is set in a cabinet case, the woodwork should be treated to occasional applications of ordinary furniture polish. This not only improves the appearance of the article but acts as a preserving agent. Every small part of the gramophone should be thoroughly dusted each day, otherwise accumulated dust is sure to impede the free movement of the wheel.

Never leave the spring wound when the instrument is put away for the night. It is advisable not to wind the machine to its full extent at any time, otherwise the spring will be weakened.

The sound box which is the most important part of all gramphones should be treated with great care and must on no account be allowed to drop or be knocked in any way.

A new needle should be used for each record. Needles are cheap, and the life of the record is doubled if a new needle is used for each side.

Records should be kept in paper or cardboard covers and laid flat one on top of the other. It is most inadvisable to stand them on their rims as in this case they are likely to warp or buckle. They should never be left about on tables etc., as they are liable to get easily scratched. As soon as a record has been used it should be replaced in its cover and put away.

Many gramophones have small cupboards beneath them for the storage of records which is an admirable thing. Should your machine not possess a space of this description, be sure to keep the records away from the fire or the sun, as they quickly become useless if left within the radius of much heat. Above all, dust the records carefully before storing away, as dust quickly penetrates into the fine indentations on the face of the record and deadens the music.

WHAT THE HAIR SHOWS

ONE frequently hears a lot about the colour of the eyes and the shape and expression of the mouth, indicating certain characteristics in a person, but not so well known is the fact that certain colours and qualities of hair usually point to a certain type of temperament.

Very fair fair, although very beautiful, often means the owner has a changeable nature and is somewhat fickle. At the same time the golden-haired person is nearly always very affectionate, and does not hesitate to show it.

Auburn hair, that glorious, gleaming colour, denotes great energy and vitality. People possessing this coloured hair manage to extract a wonderful amount of pleasure out of life, and have great tenacity of purpose.

Brown-haired folk are almost invariably to be relied on. They are thoughtful and excellent, and trustworthy friends and companions. They are frequently very reserved, but underneath this mask there is frequently a gay and genial disposition only waiting to be drawn out.

Those persons who are crowned with really black hair are generally of a bold and independent spirit. They are very hasty, and find it difficult not to speak out their thoughts impetuously. They are very ambitious and over-ride obstacles, but they are invariably warm-hearted and generous.

There are also different types of hair that indicate certain things. There is wayward hair, refusing to keep in place, which is the hair of the cheerful, happy-go-lucky souls. Smooth, sleek hair usually shows contemplation, whilst wild grey hair means hysteria, and "alive" hair shows the immense vitality of the owner.

ENGLISH BANK ROBBERY

FRANCIS BREEN'S SENTENCE TO STAND.

(Court of Criminal Appeal, London.)

Francis Breen yesterday applied for leave to appeal against his sentence of penal servitude for life, passed on him at the Manchester Assizes for armed robbery and shooting with intent to murder.

Mr. Justice Darling said that this appellant was convicted before Mr. Justice Branson with having robbed a bank and having attempted to murder several people. The bank was robbed by presenting firearms at the manager, and, in order to prevent their arrest, this man Breen and others (who were helping him, and were tried separately and convicted) fired several shots at a man named Bradley, who assisted to capture him, and the police.

Breen was a man of about 29 years of age, and had served in the Army. Apparently he was one of those people who, to redress the wrongs of some people in Ireland, murdered others. He was convicted and sentenced to five years' penal servitude for doing things in this country which would enable representatives of Ireland to murder some of His Majesty's subjects.

Political changes took place, and, after serving for a short time, this man Breen was released, and did not serve the whole of his sentence. He then seemed to have gone to Ireland and taken some part there which, according to a manifesto the Court had, would have exposed him to be hanged or shot in Ireland by those who were now establishing their authority in that country.

So he came over to England, but had got no political grievance, and this was not a political crime. He and others made up their minds to get their living by robbery and murder. In pursuit of this scheme they attacked and robbed the bank of between £200 and £300.

Two of them were tried and sentenced to ten years' penal servitude. The chief grievance of this man was that he was sentenced to penal servitude for life. He seemed to live by brigandage, and he robbed a bank and did his best to kill the people who tried to prevent him. To the attempt to murder he pleaded guilty, and the learned judge thought the proper sentence was penal servitude for life. He was a dangerous assassin, and the Court saw no ground for interfering with the sentence, and the appeal would be dismissed.

WHITE CITY CARNIVAL.

AN INTERESTING WIRELESS EXHIBITION.

An interesting feature of the White City Carnival, which opens on Friday, at Rathmines, will be a wireless demonstration in the Princess Picture Theatre, which adjoins the grounds. The ordinary picture programme will be provided concurrently with the wireless concerts at the usual prices of admission.

The wireless set, lent by the Burndept Company, of London, will enable the audience to "listen in" to the programmes from London, Manchester, etc., and those from Eiffel Tower, Paris, Berlin and The Hague.

Other attractions in connection with the carnival include the Tumbling Tanks, the Double Aerial Flight and the House of Laughter, all from Blackpool. An excellent ballroom, of 7,500 sq. ft., has been completed.

An unusual gala opening is promised for next Friday, when Sir James MacMahon has consented to officiate.

The previous passenger air service records between Croydon and Cologne were broken yesterday by Captain Barnard, who, flying the City of Glasgow, of the Instone Air Line, covered the distance of 335 miles in 2 hours 25 mins. with a full load of passengers and newspapers. An average speed of over 138 miles per hour was thus attained.

LAW REPORTS.

DENTIST'S BETS.

LOSSES ON SNOW MAIDEN.

(Court of Appeal, before Lord Justice Ronan and Lord Justice O'Connor.)

An appeal by the defendant in the case of Cole v. M'Larnon was heard. The action was brought by Thomas Cole, dentist, of 1 Earlsfort terrace, Dublin, against William M'Larnon, dentist, 50 Eaton square, Dublin, to recover £1,787 15s., made up as follows:—£800 cash lent on 4th October, 1919; £800, cash lent on 20th October, 1919; £79 15s. cash lent on 26th April, 1921; £50 cash lent on 25th September, 1921, and £8, being the price of a set of teeth supplied by the plaintiff to the defendant's sister. The claim for the £8 was abandoned. In respect of the item of £79 15s. judgment was given, together with the two sums of £800, making a total of £1,679, and from this judgment the defendant appealed.

The plaintiff's case was that the defendant had made two bets at the Curragh race meeting in September, 1919, betting £800 to £100 on a horse named "Snow Maiden." One of the bets was with Mr. Shaw, a bookmaker, of Belfast, and the other was made with Mr. R. Power, of Waterford. There were only two horses in the race, and Snow Maiden was beaten. The plaintiff alleged that he had advanced the money to McLarnon to pay for his (defendant's) losses in respect of these two bets.

The defendant, on the other hand, alleged that the bets were not his (defendant's) bets, but were the plaintiff's bets, and that the plaintiff had asked him to pay these bets for him, and had given him two cheques for £800 each, which the defendant had passed into his own banking account, and had paid the two bookmakers with cheques of his own.

It appeared that these two gentlemen had been betting considerably together, and in June, 1922, they had a quarrel. Plaintiff had written to the defendant claiming payment of the £70 odd, but making no claim for the two sums of £800. At the trial Mr. Shaw was present, and deposed that the bet had been made with him by Cole, the plaintiff, and not by the defendant. Mr. Power, the other bookmaker, was unable to attend the trial, and the defendant had asked for an adjournment to obtain his attendance. The judge at the trial (Mr. Justice Samuels) refused to grant an adjournment. The defendant now submitted that the trial had been unsatisfactory, and that there ought to be a new trial in respect of the liability for the two sums of £800.

The Court of Appeal, in directing a new trial, decided to enter judgment for the plaintiff for the sum of £79 15s., with costs; that a new trial be had in respect of liability of the defendant in respect of the two sums of £800, and that the entire costs of the first trial, of this appeal, and the new trial when held should be dependent upon the result of the new trial, and be awarded to the party succeeding in the new trial.

Counsel for the appellant (defendant)—Mr. J. R. C. Lardner, K.C., and James Henry (Messrs. Reddin and Reddin). For the respondent (plaintiff)—Serjeant Hanna and Mr. Marnan (Messrs. Cussen and Kieran).

THE QUEEN'S THEATRE.

(Chancery Division, before the Master of the Rolls.)

The matter of the Queen's Theatre was again before the Court, on an application on behalf of the plaintiff, a debenture holder and mortgagee, in the case of Leahy v. Queen's Theatre (Dublin), Limited.

Mr. H. Hamilton (instructed by Mr. Lane-Joynt), for the plaintiff, Mr. D. O'M. Leahy, applied on summons for an order directing the receiver (Mr. Pim) and the defendant company to lodge the title deeds of the company's property in Court for the purposes of sale.

Referring to the proceedings which had previously taken place with regard to the company, he stated that on the 15th of January, 1912, an action was started by John E. McCall, H. Williams and Company, and Thwaites and Company, in the case of McCall and others v. the Queen's Theatre Company, Limited, claiming to have certain mortgages declared well charged on the property of the company, and to have the usual inquiry directed as to the amounts due, etc. The plaintiffs having issued their writ and got a receiver appointed, had done nothing else for the last eleven years except to carry out the order then made, and get a certificate, as the result of the inquiry for £1,000 and £516 interest.

His client was a puisne mortgagee, the Statute of Limitations was running against his claim, and he wanted to get an order for sale. Mr. Leahy was getting nothing out of the estate.

The Master of the Rolls—What exactly is your application?

Mr. Hamilton—My present application is that the defendant company do lodge all the title deeds they have. They say they have got none; and an assistant in the office of Mr. Norris Goddard, solicitor for the receiver, says they belong to Mr. McCall.

Mr. Dickie, K.C., said that he appeared for Mr. McCall and the other debenture holders, the plaintiffs, and he objected to the deeds being brought in. McCall had brought a debenture holder's action, and also an action in his personal capacity as mortgagee as to his own charge.

When the action was brought in 1913 a receiver was appointed, and the theatre was carried on since, and they thought it better not to do anything further until they saw that the proper time for a sale had come. They refused to part with the title deeds. They would go on with the action to recover £8,000 and £4,000, and any surplus that remained after these sums had been recovered Mr. Lane Joynt's client could get.

Mr. Phelps (instructed by Mr. Norris Goddard) appeared for the receiver.

Mr. Sainsbury said that he held a watching brief for Mr. McCall, as mortgagee.

The Master of the Rolls said that there were so many appearing for parties in different capacities in this case that they really did not know where they were.

Mr. David D. Dunne, solicitor for the defendant company, said that he had not got the deeds.

The Master of the Rolls said that he could not make any order on Mr. Hamilton's application. Mr. Hamilton could amend his proceedings by naming Mr. McCall as a defendant to the action. He allowed Mr. Leahy and Mr. McCall their costs, but declined to allow the receiver costs.

£1,000 CLAIM.

KNOCKED OFF BICYCLE BY MOTOR CAR.

(King's Bench Division, before Mr. Justice Pim and a Jury.)

The hearing was begun in an action, in which Peter Hughes, Park street, Dundalk, merchant, claims £1,000 damages from Alice E. Hill, Newcourt, Bray, for personal injuries and damage to a bicycle caused by the alleged negligent driving of a motor car by the defendant on the 12th October, 1921, in Park street, Dundalk.

Mr. McCann, K.C., outlining the case for the plaintiff, said that Mr. Hughes was a member of Dail Eireann, Chairman of the Dundalk Urban Council, and a member of the Dundalk Board of Guardians, and a member of the Louth County Council. He was also a publican, and had a farm outside Dundalk.

Mr. Hughes's place of business was in Park street, and, being an active man, he did a good deal of work on a bicycle. On this evening, about 4 o'clock, he was returning home, when a motor car drove up behind him at the approach to Park street, knocked him off the bicycle, and dragged both himself and the machine along the street. The car and the bicycle became entangled, and the curious thing about it was that the machine acted as a brake to the motor car and brought it to a stand-still. A man who witnessed the affair went to the defendant, who was driving, said she was lucky she had not killed the plaintiff and that she was not competent to drive a motor car.

She replied that she was sorry and would repair the damage done to the bicycle. Mr. Hughes was on his proper side of the road, and the defendant was either grossly negligent or grossly incompetent in the driving of the motor car. As a result of the occurrence plaintiff's bicycle was smashed, his suit of clothes ruined, and for a long time he was unable to look after his business.

Evidence was then given in support of counsel's statement.

The hearing was adjourned until this morning.

Mr. McCann, K.C., Mr. Lardner, K.C., and Mr. Campbell (instructed by Mr. James McCourt, Dundalk) appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. P. Lynch, K.C., and Mr. Joseph O'Connor (instructed by Messrs. Gerald Byrne and Co.) for the defendant.

DUBLIN AND THE PROVINCES.

DUBLIN.

BOY'S SAD END.—At an inquest in Dublin yesterday into the death of Albert Lindsay, aged 11, 9 Vavasour square, Bath avenue, Dublin, who died from the effects of a cut on the head alleged to have been inflicted by a spanner thrown by William Patterson, a chauffeur, 81 Bath avenue, a verdict of accidental death was returned. Patterson was exonerated. The deceased lad, with others, was laughing at Patterson who was repairing a motor-car in Vavasour square. Patterson raised his hand, and the spanner slipped from it and struck Lindsay. It was stated in evidence that Patterson was not in an ill-humour; he was joking with the lads. His hand was oily; it did not appear as though the spanner was thrown at anybody, but slipped from Patterson's grasp. Medical evidence showed that the wound was dressed at a hospital, and the boy was told to call every day, but he did not do so, and the wound became septic. When he did return some days later, he was detained, but died in the afternoon. In the Police Court yesterday Patterson was charged with causing Lindsay's death, and was remanded until to-day.

SORDID STORY.—"A wretched case," was the Coroner's comment at an inquest in Dublin yesterday into the death of Mrs. Catherine Murray, aged 47, who lived with her husband in a room at 11 Hardwicke place, Dublin, and who was found dead on the steps leading to the basement of the house on Sunday night. According to the husband the deceased woman occasionally went away for a few days after taking drink. On Saturday she left their room, saying that she would be back in a few minutes. Her husband did not see her alive again. A woman who lived in the basement said that she saw the deceased woman seated on the step, apparently under the influence of drink. When she saw her again on Sunday morning she was lying at the bottom with blood coming from her head. Medical evidence showed that death was due to shock and hemorrhage following fracture of the base of the skull. The jury returned a verdict accordingly, adding that there was no evidence to show how the injuries were received.

WOMAN SOLICITOR CONGRATULATED.—At the Drumcondra District Court yesterday, Miss Early, solicitor, appeared for the plaintiff in a case of a summons for the possession of a cottage. She conducted the case with tact and ability, and gained a tribute from the justice. Miss Early is one of a family of lawyers, her two brothers being solicitors.

ALLEGED LARCENY OF CABLE.—Edward Geoghegan, Martin Synnott, and Michael Phillips were charged in the Dublin Police Court yesterday with the larceny of lead and copper cable from the ship Cmyric, on which Phillips was engaged as mate. Evidence was given that a quantity of lead was sold to a storekeeper for £17 or £18. Phillips was arrested, and taken to Oriel House, where he said that a man suggested that he should sell some of the stuff. He received £1 out of the transaction. A remand for a week was granted.

DIRECT LABOUR ON THE ROADS.—By five votes to three Granard District Council has adopted a direct labour scheme for the maintenance of the roads, involving an expenditure of £5,300.

MUNSTER.

YOUGHAL LABOUR EXCHANGE.—Youghal Urban Council has received a memorial from a number of business people, protesting against the opening of a branch of the Labour Exchange in the local post office. A councillor said that it was ridiculous to have it in the post office, which was too small for its own business. The Chairman said that it was a case of economy without efficiency. It gave extra work to the small staff, and the unemployed blocked a narrow street, to the injury of the business people. Another councillor said that the question of the work put on the post officials was none of their business, but they should take serious notice of the protest sent in by ratepayers. The Town Clerk was directed to convey a strong protest to the authorities.

ULSTER.

FLOODS IN DONEGAL.—Following heavy rains, the River Finn has overflowed between Strabane and Stranorlar. Many fields in the Clady and Castlefin districts are under water, and hay has floated away. Great difficulty was experienced in rescuing cattle.

At a meeting of the Committee of the Licensed Grocers' and Vintners' Protection Association yesterday, a vote of sympathy was passed with the widow and family of the late Mr. Michael Bergin.

The body of James McGowan, the twelve-year-old schoolboy who was drowned while bathing in the River Mourne, has been recovered from fourteen feet of water at Strabane.

NORTHERN IRELAND.

SIX INJURED IN MOTOR SMASH.—Six persons were injured in a motor car accident on the Belfast road, near Newry, on Sunday night. The near front tyre on the car burst, and the vehicle swerved into a tree and turned a complete somersault. All the occupants were thrown out. Mr. Frederick Molyneaux, Everton street, Liverpool, was so seriously injured in the head that little hopes are entertained of his recovery. Mrs. Molyneaux was thrown over a hedge, and less seriously hurt, while Messrs. W. Johnston, Belfast, and Gorman, Bessbrook, were also badly hurt. These are detained in Newry General Hospital. Messrs. John Lynch, Holywood, the owner and driver of the car, and Thomas Logan, Belfast, were treated for minor injuries, but were not detained.

LAW AND ORDER IN DERRY.—Londonderry Assizes were opened yesterday by the Lord Chief Justice of Northern Ireland, who said that the number of cases was extremely small. The number of specially reported crimes had fallen from twenty-six to eight. He had been assured by the Constabulary authorities that not only was the city peaceful, but that both sides and all classes entertained much better feelings towards each other than had been the case for a number of years.

METHYLATED SPIRITS LAW. — At Omagh yesterday, James Maguire, of Aghalane, Mountfield, was charged with making a false statement for the purpose of obtaining methylated spirits, the case being that the defendant stated that he wanted the methylated spirits for a blow lamp, and signed the chemist's book. The defence put forward by Maguire was that he was acting under the influence of a man named James Maynes, Omagh, who was charged with aiding and abetting. The Bench convicted Maguire and imposed a fine of 40s. and costs, while the case against Maynes was dismissed without prejudice.

COALS OF FIRE.—At Dungannon Petty Sessions yesterday, Minnie Curry, a domestic servant, of Newry, was charged with the larceny of a suit case, the property of Murray Richardson. The accused girl pleaded guilty, and, on the undertaking to go back to Newry, was allowed out under the Probation of Offenders Act. The magistrates subscribed her railway fare, and Mr. Richardson presented her with the suit case.

DROWNED IN A BOG.—On Saturday evening Doreen McVeen, aged 2½ years, was found drowned in a bog near Camlough, Co. Armagh. The little girl and her mother were paying a visit to the district from Liverpool.

EXCESS PROFITS DUTY.

APPEAL AGAINST ASSESSMENT

(King's Bench Division, before the Lord Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Samuels.)

The special case stated in Martin Fitzgerald, appellant, v. the Commissioners of Inland Revenue, respondents, came on for argument.

Mr. Leonard, K.C., and Mr. Moloney (instructed by Messrs. Miley and Miley) appeared for the appellant; and Mr. T. S. McCann, K.C.; Mr. T. Sullivan, K.C.; and Mr. Shannon (instructed by Mr. Richard Martin), for the respondents.

Appellant, Mr. Martin Fitzgerald, of 91, 92, and 93 Middle Abbey street, appealed against assessments to excess profits duty made upon him for periods of one year each, ended June 30, 1916, and June 30, 1917, and under the provisions of the Finance (No. 2) Act, 1915, and subsequent enactments. The following facts were proved or admitted under the provisions of the lease of the premises in Middle Abbey street, which was for a term for 50 years at £255 yearly:—The applicant was bound to keep them in complete order, and at the expiration of the lease to yield them in the same order, reasonable wear and tear excepted.

In the week commencing 24th April, 1916, the premises were burnt out in the rebellion in circumstances in which applicant was precluded from recovering the value under any insurance policy or under the Criminal Injuries Act. He was obliged to acquire temporary premises at 94 and 95 Thomas street for a term of six years at a yearly rent of £200, as well as additional premises for temporary stores. To adapt the temporary premises and stores appellant spent £300 in 1916, and £1,436 12s. 5d. in 1917.

The premises in Middle Abbey street were not, and could not, be occupied for the purposes of appellant's trade, but, without any delay on his part, steps were taken, and the new premises would be better than the old premises. Not less than £18,713 would have been necessary in order to restore the old premises, but appellant has expended about £30,000 upon the new premises, and had received from the Government an ex gratia payment of £8,500 in respect of the premises which were destroyed.

Appellant contended (1) That the £300 and £1,436 12s. 5d. in fitting up the temporary premises were admissible deductions from excess profits duty; (2) that £10,213, being the difference between the agreed estimated cost of replacing the old buildings—namely, £18,713 and the £8,500 received from the Government, was also a proper deduction under the same principles.

The Inspector of Taxes, on behalf of the Commissioners of Inland Revenue, opposed these contentions, and claimed that the sums of £300, £1,436 12s. and £10,213 were, all of them, expenditure of a capital nature not admissible as deductions, and that the sum of £10,213 did not represent any expenditure incurred in the periods under appeal.

The arguments in the case have not concluded.

£750 DAMAGES.

(King's Bench Division, before Mr. Justice Pim and a Jury.)

The case of Natalia Skelton, Weir View, Islandbridge, v. Captain Sean Trayers, Collins Barracks, was heard for the purpose of assessing damages.

Mr. Wood, K.C., who with Mr. St. L. Devitt (instructed by Messrs. Horan and Devine) was for plaintiff, told the Court that on Christmas night last his client boarded a tram at Parkgate street. At the stop near her home she alighted. Immediately defendant's car came along, struck her, whirled her round, and dashed her against the kerbstone.

Her left arm was badly smashed, and at the present moment she was suffering intense pain. A wedding ring of hers was cut in two, and other articles of jewellery and clothing were damaged. She was in Steevens' Hospital until the 27th April, and her account amounted to £40 19s.

Medical evidence on behalf of the plaintiff was given by Surgeon Haughton, Steevens' Hospital, and on behalf of the defendant by Surgeon Barniville.

The jury assessed damages at £750, and judgment was entered accordingly.

Mr. Cunniam (instructed by Mr. Henry Lemass) represented the defendant, Captain Trayers.

A CORK CLOTHING COMPANY.

(Chancery Division, before the Master of the Rolls.)

In the Chancery Division yesterday, before the Master of the Rolls, in the matter of the Artan Clothing Factory, Ltd.,

Mr. Dickie, K.C. (instructed by Messrs. James O'Connor and Co.), applied on behalf of the petitioners, the National Land Bank, Ltd., Dublin, for an order appointing Mr. Telford provisional liquidator, pending the hearing of the petition filed for the winding up of the company. The Artan Clothing Factory, Limited, the petitioners stated, has its registered office at 18 Merchant street, Cork. Its nominal capital was £5,000, divided into 5,000 £1 shares.

The amount of the capital paid up, or credited to be paid up, was £2,700. The company was indebted to the petitioners for the sum of £3,677 11s. 10d. for moneys lent and other moneys paid to the company by the petitioners; and on 23rd June last judgment was marked for the amount against the company with costs. On the same day a fi. fa. was sent to the Sub-Sheriff of Cork, who informed the petitioners from inquiries made that he ascertained the assets on which he could levy were very limited, and would not realise more than £150, the only substantial asset being the premises of the company, held under a lease, which contains a clause of re-entry in the event of the company suffering, execution to be levied on them.

On the 7th inst. petitioners received a letter from the company, notifying them that the company had by resolution decided to go into voluntary liquidation, and to appoint Mr. James Curtin, 22 South Mall, Cork, to be the liquidator. Owing to the large sum of money due to the petitioners they were not satisfied with the voluntary liquidation of the company, and thought a very careful inquiry was necessary to find out where the assets have gone, as the petitioners were led to believe, and always understood that the company was solvent.

The Master of the Rolls granted the application, and made the appointment sought.

Wages in the Free State.

Any belief or suspicion that Capital has declared a wanton war on Labour in the Free State ports must be dispelled by the document which we print to-day. It is a clear and dispassionate statement of the shipowners' case. It proves not merely that they are not "out" for war, but that, in a situation which has been almost impossible for some months, they put the public interest before their own. The shipping industry has been engaged in a hopeless struggle with "grossly excessive rates of wages" and artificial labour conditions. The Free State is the only country in Europe where wages have not receded towards their normal level after the unsettlement of the Great War. Dublin is in competition with the ports of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, where the reduced rates prevail; and it has the further handicap that the Irish Transport Workers' Union has been able to enforce conditions of labour that are wholly uneconomic. In bringing the crisis to a head now the companies are making a final appeal to the intelligence and common-sense of Irish Labour. The first necessity is a drastic revision of rates and working conditions. Everybody knows that English oversea dockers get ten shillings a day while the Irish dockers insist on sixteen shillings; but the companies' statement will enable the public to appreciate for the first time the almost fantastic position that has obtained for many months at the Port of Dublin. Before the war a piece of work which employed the services of twenty-five men, at a wage of five shillings for a day of ten hours, cost £6 5s. To-day the same job employs thirty-five men, at a wage of fourteen shillings for a day of eight hours, and costs £24 10s. If "over-time" is worked up to ten hours, the job costs £32 13s. 4d.—an increase of 422 per cent. on the cost before the war. This may be a victory for the Transport Workers' Union, but it is a Pyrrhic victory. A few more such victories and what will become of the armies of workless Labour on the desolate quays of Dublin?

On questions of detail the companies are willing to make any reasonable arrangements that will help Labour to solve its own troubles. It is not impossible, for instance, that better organisation might eliminate the problem of the "casual" docker. Of course, nothing of this sort can be done until the whole industry is put on a new basis of wages and working conditions; and here, since the companies are powerless, Labour must make the first move. It must begin by restoring discipline within its own ranks. As this statement says, the constitution of a body which will have real authority to negotiate with the employers must be the first step towards a resumption of work. In the next place, the dockers and their union must accept in principle the necessity of an all-round reduction of wages. To-day they are fighting a losing battle, which would continue to be a losing battle even if, for the moment, the companies should be beaten to their knees. Sooner or later—and probably sooner than later—the alternatives must be reduced wages and no wages at all. The conditions of the shipping trade obtain in virtually all the large industries of the Free State. Even now other employers are being forced to follow the shipowners' example, and, if no decisive step is taken within the next few days, the cessation of work may assume disastrous proportions. The fateful choice lies with Labour. It can accept the logic of facts or, like blind Samson, it can bring down the pillars of the house on its own broken body. The employers are not merely willing, but anxious, to negotiate at the first instant when negotiation becomes possible. If Labour will appoint representatives authorised on its behalf to acknowledge the necessity of reduced wages, a conference that may re-open all the Free State harbours can be held before the end of the present week.

Doctors and Hospitals.

From time immemorial the healing of the sick has been regarded as a proper field for the efforts of the benevolent and not as a proper function of the State. Charitable persons built and endowed hospitals. Self-sacrificing men and women tended the sick and the doctors cured them without fees. The system had one good feature. When called to the bedside of the poor hospital patient, the doctor was at liberty to put into effect the latest and best methods known to the medical art without regard to the patient's whims. In the case of wealthy patients the pure practice of medicine was forced to yield, often enough, to the invalid's natural objection to being dosed with new-fangled drugs or subjected to any but the time-honoured operations. It was in the charitable hospitals, therefore, that mediæval therapeutics made most of their progress, and the same thing is true, to some extent, at the present day. When, however, the communities became vaster and more complex, wealthy and benevolent persons relatively scarcer, and the potentialities, alike of the public for acquiring maladies and of medical science for curing them, greater, the communities themselves began to be obliged to come to the aid of the benevolent. This has been done in a multitude of different ways; but the voluntary donation and the unpaid doctor remain the basis of the general therapeutic system of all nations. Yet every day the problem becomes more acute. Of the plight of the many fine hospitals that are supported by voluntary contributions both in Ireland and in Britain we hear much. Now at the British Medical Association's representative meeting, which is in progress at Portsmouth, the question of "hospital policy" has been raised with particular respect to the unpaid status of the doctor.

The doctors who participated in the discussion at Portsmouth expressed divided opinions. Some contended that, so long as the hospital system remained on the voluntary basis, the medical profession ought to continue to give its services without reward. Others took the position that the voluntary system, if not actually dead, is, in fact, moribund. In many hospitals patients pay as much as three and four guineas a week. It is absurd, the advocates of the staff fund contend, that such persons should get their medical attention free, or that communities which make such handsome contributions to the upkeep of their hospitals should not pay the doctors who do the work. The point is sound enough, but it is a plea of expediency rather than of policy. The medical profession, as a whole, prefers the voluntary system to a State hospital service, and there is no doubt that under it the patient gets far better treatment than a State hospital service would give him. So long as the voluntary basis is preserved, the system of gratuitous hospital work by physicians and surgeons is the natural complement of it. A State which took the Erewhonian view of sickness as a crime against society might think no public expense too great to be incurred in the extermination of every ill to which the flesh is heir. Modern States do not think in that way, however; and a State hospital service would be starved to meet the economies of Treasury watch-dogs, the exigencies of tax-shy budgeteers and the public taste for expensive armaments and for the financial support of the unproductive robust. Time may work a change; but under present conditions the voluntary system, of which the doctors' unpaid services are an integral part, is still the best.

Minstrels at Oxford.

In the spacious days when minstrelsy was an accepted part of the social life of the upper classes poetry and music went hand in hand. The minstrel, if the authorities do not err, was generally "infirm and old," and, indeed, we may believe that the art of playing a harp and reciting an epic at the same time was not acquired quickly. We shall never know precisely how it was done—to what extent the minstrel improvised his recitative or, as the case may be, had his lines committed to memory, or if the strains torn from his wild harp followed any prearranged sequence of musical ideas. Now an effort is being made at Oxford to bring about what is intended to be a first step towards a revival of the minstrel's art. The originator of the idea is Mr. John Masefield, who is not only a fine poet, but is the one English poet who is courageously determined to keep the intellectual value of poetry—and, incidentally, of poets—before the public mind. In conjunction with Professor Gordon and Mr. Robert Bridges, the Poet Laureate, he has arranged for the holding of a poetical symposium during the present week in one of the University's public buildings. The music-makers will be permitted to bruise and shake the world, or, at any rate, the audience, with their own fine frenzies, or they may recite the poetry of others. A good many of the five hundred "entries"—it seems to be an astonishing number—will recite, no doubt, the epics of Mr. John Masefield and even the more classic cantos of the Poet Laureate. That the orgy of reverberating rhythm will awake a new passion for this style of entertainment in the sluggish British breast appears to be doubtful. It may serve, however, to remind us that Boar's Hill is still the authentic Parnassus of British song.

Control of Traffic.

The general public, for the most part, is under a somewhat vague impression that the control of street traffic concerns the police alone—that policemen merely have to learn a short hand-waving course in order that all may go well. In fact, if the traffic of a city is to be controlled properly, the layman must know his part, and must play it well, too. All who use the streets—not only those who drive or cycle, but pedestrians also—should learn to understand, and to obey implicitly, the several traffic signs. In the great cities of the world the organisation of the traffic must needs be efficient. If it were done in a slipshod manner, there would be endless congestion, and nobody would be able to get anywhere. In London the point duty policemen undergo a careful training. They are in absolute command of the streets, and the result is that one rarely sees the smallest hitch in the London traffic. It would be an excellent thing if some of our Dublin policemen could be given an opportunity of seeing how the traffic regulations in London are administered and of learning the London methods. Here there is tangle after tangle in the traffic, and these do not occur through wilfulness or laziness, but simply through lack of proper understanding.

PRAIRIES INTO PAPER.

SIR FREDERICK BECKER'S SCHEME.

Dublin has a direct interest in the new process for transforming the waste straw of the Canadian prairies into paper. Big scale experiments are about to be carried out at the Northfleet Paper Mills, in Kent, whose Chairman, Sir Frederick Becker, is also Chairman of the Irish Paper Mills Company, Ltd. Sir Frederick indicated to an interviewer yesterday the scope of a discovery which may eventually turn into high grade paper what is at present the waste product of Canada's 22,000,000 acres of wheat lands in the Prairie Provinces.

"For many years past," he explained, "the utilisation of the waste fibres of the world for paper-making has been a matter of universal interest. The great difficulty has always been the question of transporting the raw fibre, for, as they stand, tropical fibres often contain from eighty to ninety per cent. of water; and, by the time they have been dried, conveyed and boiled, the question of yield kills the commercial side of the proposition. The storage of such fibres, moreover, is frequently hindered by fermentation. The result is that at present much of the countless acres of straw produced on the plains of Canada is simply burned as a waste product.

"You might, in a homely way, liken the existing situation to the work of laundries which return our shirts and our collars to us all frayed. In paper-making, straw, as used at present, is boiled under severe pressure with very strong soda, and thereafter bleached with chloride of lime. The result is that the delicate fibres of the straw are more or less jellified, and, although they have been regularly used in small proportions in paper for many, many years, they have never been a hundred per cent. proposition in paper-making because of the stickiness and fraying of the fibres.

"The new De Vains process could be suitably compared, to continue the analogy, with the old hand laundry system. The fibre is first gently boiled in soda ash, treated with bleach, washed, treated with soda again, again treated with bleach. It comes out a perfect product, ready to make the highest grades of paper."

The new plant, which will be operated at Northfleet by a small separate company, will, it is hoped, be at work early in January. Esparto and other home fibres, as well as straw, are to be treated, and any definite results are to be submitted first to the Canadian Government, for, if a remunerative price can be obtained, it is felt that the possibilities for using what is now practically the waste product of the prairies would be almost limitless.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

DISARMAMENT DEBATE.

LABOUR PARTY'S RESOLUTION DEFEATED.

FROM OUR PARLIAMENTARY CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Monday.

To-day a debate on the Labour Party's disarmament resolution took place. Recalling the pledges of political leaders, that the great world war was to end all war, the motion urged the Government to take immediate steps to call an international conference to consider a programme of national safety, based upon the policy that by disarmament alone can the peace and liberty of small and large nations alike be secured.

The motion was submitted by Mr. Ramsay Macdonald, who thought that the position of Great Britain in the world, and our reputation, would give special weight to an invitation from this country to an international conference on disarmament.

While he spoke without express disapproval of the increased expenditure on the Royal Air Force, he described the action of the Government in regard to Singapore as a colossal folly. Alluding to an amendment standing in the names of Mr. P. Hugh O'Neill and General Cockerill, urging that the Government should use its influence, through the League of Nations, to prevent a recurrence of international competition in armaments, Mr. Macdonald said that the Labour Party had no objection to the League of Nations, but up to the present the League has not won the confidence of very important nations.

Mr. Asquith regretted that it had been thought necessary to move an amendment, believing, as he did, that a united House of Commons should give a firm lead to the rest of the world in the matter of the limitation of armaments. He doubted the strategic value of Singapore, and, notwithstanding all that has been said on this matter, he appealed to the Government to reconsider their decision.

Mr. Fisher did not regard a new International conference essential, seeing that the question of armaments was to come before the League of Nations. Speaking of a recent visit to Germany, he said that he was alarmed at the growth of hostility and militant feeling which was excited by the French occupation.

The Secretary of State for Air dealt with the recent increase in the Air Force as a regrettable necessity. But, he said, the risk of unpreparedness was so terrible that no Government—Conservative, Liberal, or Labour—could possibly allow it to continue. If there was to be disarmament, it must be general.

The Prime Minister's comment on the arguments advanced in support of the motion was that the speakers had disregarded the fighting instinct which was part of human nature. Until this was combated or eradicated, all efforts to produce peace by legislation or arbitration would be in vain.

The Government believed that any attempt at this moment to convene an international congress would, so far from leading to success, indefinitely postpone any possibility of achieving the ends which all of them desired.

The problem could not be approached with any chance of success until questions relating to Reparations and the security of frontiers had been settled, and it was to these questions the Government were now addressing themselves.

The Labour Party's motion was defeated by 286 to 169.

MR. HARRY CLARKE'S NEW WINDOWS.

By THOMAS BODKIN.

In his exhibition, which opens to-day at 33 North Frederick street, Dublin, Mr. Harry Clarke excels himself. Such is his pleasant custom. He never recedes: he never stands still. With each fresh work he shows a power that grows steadily deeper and stronger. "Genius" is the only word in my vocabulary which does full justice to the measure of his gifts as an artist in stained and painted glass.

The more important of the two windows at present exhibited will soon be leaving Ireland on its way to the Church of Notre Dame in Glasgow. It is a large representation, in three lights or openings, of the Coronation of the Blessed Virgin, and contains no fewer than twenty-five half-life-size figures. Mary kneels on a flight of shallow grey steps down which her girdle spills in exquisite waves—to receive her crown from the Christ triumphant. Her robe is woven of a melting emerald; her mantle made with all the molten blues of flowers and skies and waters. Above the Christ and His mother float choirs of angels; behind and about them hangs a shimmering screen of cool iridescence, framed in a blaze of golden beams; and, in a reverent half-circle at the base, stand St. Anne, St. Mary Magdalen, St. Catherine, St. Mungo, St. Margaret of Scotland, St. Andrew, St. Patrick, St. Christopher, St. Philomena and St. Joseph, richly dight in damasked robes, each one bearing an offering or a symbol.

The other window, in two lights, was commissioned by Father Healy, of Terenure, whose church is already remarkable for the great crucifixion window which Mr. Clarke made early in 1920. One light contains a representation of the Annunciation; the other a figure of the Blessed Virgin in glory. Though they form an entirely harmonious whole, they are treated in different manners. The Annunciation is a simple, if wholly spiritual, pastoral. The Virgin in glory has a quality of hierarchic mysticism and grandeur. Her halo is of lambent flame. About her drift a multitude of little foreshadowing figures, Ruth, Rachael, Deborah, Rebecca, Judith and Esther. These are drawn with such amazing delicacy of detail that they demand inspection at the closest quarter; and yet when seen from a distance they sink into a background swirl of lovely hues enhancing the majestic figure of their queen. The destined site of this window allows for its examination at all ranges for the full exploration of all its wonders.

It does much to reconcile us to the imminent departure of the larger window to Glasgow. Too much of Mr. Clarke's glass-work has gone abroad already. Few, indeed, of his countrymen may hope to visit the great windows which he has sent to Nantwich and Sturminster Newton, to Mombasa, Ballarat and Brisbane. We should not allow him to satisfy the tastes of the appreciative foreigner till we have seized all opportunities of inducing him to improve our own.

WEATHER FORECAST.

General Inference.—In the rear of a depression, moving south-east across England, winds will be westerly or north-westerly generally, with variable cloud, local showers, and a moderate temperature. A new depression, indicated South of Greenland, may cause winds to back later, with some rain in the extreme West and North-West.

N.W. and S.W. Ireland.—Wind westerly or north-westerly, backing later, light or moderate; fair at first, probably rain or drizzle later; visibility moderate or good; moderate temperature.

N.E. and S.E. Ireland.—Wind westerly or north-westerly, light or moderate, fresh in places; variable cloud; local showers; visibility moderate to good; moderate temperature.

South-West Seaboard, Mouth of Channel to South-West Ireland; Irish Sea and St. George's Channel.—Wind westerly or north-westerly, moderate, fresh in places; variable cloud; local showers; visibility moderate or good; sea slight or moderate.

North-West Seaboard, Northern Ireland to Hebrides.—Wind westerly or north-westerly, backing later; fair at first, probably rain or drizzle later; visibility moderate or good; sea slight or moderate.

LONDON LETTER.

THE BRITISH NOTE.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
MONDAY NIGHT.

The confidential character of the British communication to the several countries addressed has been recognised in a most complete manner. No details have been allowed to leak out, and the only definite statement unofficially made concerning it is that it occupies six pages and contains 2,500 words. It was not to be expected that replies would be immediately forthcoming from Paris, Brussels and Washington; but it is to be hoped that, while full consideration may be given to the document, there will not be any undue delay in the despatch of an answer. It would be idle to speculate as to the line which will be taken up by M. Poincaré and M. Theunis at the present moment, but the reports that the two Premiers are to confer are probably correct, and there may be several conferences before the final draft of the reply is settled.

It is said that M. Poincaré's speech at Villers-Cotterets was prepared some time ago, and has, therefore, no reference to the British Note. His insistence upon the danger of Germany's recovering her predominance in European trade and industry if she is given easier terms of payment is calculated to strengthen French opinion in the necessity of the continued occupation of the Ruhr, and does not suggest that the present French Government is at all likely to alter its attitude to any appreciable extent.

Irish Questions.

The Under-Secretary for the Colonies is about the busiest Minister nowadays. To-day nearly thirty questions were addressed to him. Several of them related to Irish affairs. Sir John Butcher again brought forward the complaint of certain ex-Civil Servants that the Free State had refused to grant them the compensation to which they were entitled, and urged the appointment of a committee to advise whether their complaints were well founded or not. Mr. Ormsby-Gore said that there was no ground for the appointment of such a committee, and when Sir John inquired how, in that case, the Government were to know that their obligations were being honourably carried out, he replied that they received regular reports from the Free State Committee.

Mr. Ormsby-Gore, in reply to a further question regarding the rights of British subjects in Southern Ireland, pointed out that all the inhabitants of Ireland were technically British subjects, but that under Article I. of the Treaty the Irish Free State was a Dominion, and enjoyed the same power as other Dominions over the persons living within its borders. He added rather plaintively that he was not the Minister responsible for drawing up the Treaty.

Concerning the payments for compensation he was decidedly hopeful. As regards defended decrees, £265,000 had been paid and about £150,000 remained to be paid, while, of the Wood Renton awards, the total paid to date amounted to £1,358,000, and so large had been the payments in June that he had good hopes that the arrears would soon be cleared off.

Disarmament.

In proposing his disarmament motion, Mr. Ramsay Macdonald was very eloquent and earnest, but the tricks of delivery which prevent him from being a great Parliamentary speaker were very much in evidence. First among these I should place his sudden transitions from a loud, almost strident, tone to something little removed from a whisper, with the result that one is deafened at one moment and hardly can hear a word the next. Secondly, he has a habit of turning round and addressing his supporters, who may be expected to agree with him, instead of the Ministerialists whom he is trying presumably to convince.

I did not obtain, moreover, a very clear idea of what his policy would be on the subject of national defence if the Labour Party got into power. He insisted very strongly on the evils of war, but did not explain very clearly what he would do if he were responsible for national defence, beyond suggesting the establishment of a permanent international committee to be constantly considering what further disarmament could be effected. I am afraid that in practice this committee, by constantly diverting the attention of nations to the question of their armaments in relation to one another, might have the very opposite result to that which he favours.

Two Speakers.

It cannot often have happened that the Speaker of one House of Commons addresses the Speaker of another. The Right Hon. Hugh O'Neill, who fills that post in the Northern Parliament of Ireland, moved an amendment to Mr. Macdonald's resolution which took most of the sting out of it. His argument was that there are both favourable and unfavourable features in the state of Europe at the present time, and that, though the favourable predominated, it would be a mistake to call an international conference on the subject of disarmament at this moment.

Motor Accidents.

Every week brings its toll of motor accidents, many of which occur on the main roads between London and popular resorts on the coast. It is easy to blame motorists for reckless driving, but carelessness in this respect probably accounts for quite a small proportion of the mishaps. Traffic control arrangements at some of the cross-roads have not been sufficiently extended to include all the dangerous corners where collisions frequently occur, and the need for a new system of traffic control grows greater every day. The Ministry of Transport has this question under consideration, and, if the suggested new body consisting of representatives of various local Councils is not established, some alternative scheme must be devised.

Many of the accidents occur within a radius of twenty-five miles of London, and this is the area which must be dealt with first in any scheme of traffic regulation. Various means of improving the state of things have been discussed. Such proposals as the relegating of horses to roads of secondary importance and the limiting of the number of motor licences issued are of too drastic a character to be adopted just yet; but it would appear that the roads are growing incapable of carrying the ever-increasing volume of traffic with safety. The easiest remedy to the present state of affairs would be the employment of a larger number of police upon traffic regulation duties.

Rescued Bananas.

During the dock strike several ships laden with bananas, finding that there was little prospect of being able to discharge their cargoes, threw the fruit overboard. The jettisoned cargoes are now being washed up on the shore in several parts of England and many of the bananas have reached London. Street hawkers have been busy selling them to-day at cheap prices, and, to judge by the readiness of people to buy them, the immersion in salt water has not greatly affected the flavour.

INDUSTRY'S FIGHT FOR LIFE.

SHIPOWNERS' EXPLANATION OF POSITION.

LOWER WAGES ESSENTIAL

THE DIVISION IN THE RANKS OF LABOUR.

In a statement which they issued last night on the dispute that has paralysed the trade of the ports, the Associated Shipowners say that "a revision of the present conditions is essential to the survival of shipping and other industries in the Free State."

They point out that employers have paid "grossly excessive wages" and tolerated "artificial conditions of labour" in order to avert an industrial crisis in unstable political and economic conditions and in the hope that Labour would recognise that a process of readjustment was inevitable.

A continuance of these conditions—conditions which led to the destruction of the two shipyards in Dublin—would be disastrous to industry.

The statement contrasts the wages paid to dock labourers in 1914 with the wages they received until the beginning of last week. In 1914 twenty-five men who worked ten hours a day did the same amount of work as thirty-five men working eight hours a day do at the present time. The twenty-five men received £6 5s. between them, while the wages of the thirty-five men amount to £24 10s.

SHIPOWNERS' CASE.

WHY WAGES MUST BE REDUCED.

The following official statement has been issued on behalf of the Associated Shipowners respecting the present labour troubles:—

"The prospect that the present condition of paralysis at Free State ports is likely to continue for many weeks, and that it must rapidly and inevitably extend to many other interests, renders it desirable that a clear statement should be placed before the public as to the causes and implications of the present crisis.

"In common with other industrial interests Irish shipowners have for many months continued to pay grossly excessive rates of wages, and to struggle with artificial labour conditions, in order to avert an industrial crisis in unstable political and economic conditions; and in the hope that organised labour might realise and accommodate itself to inevitable readjustment of wages and conditions. One notable result of this hesitation upon the part of employers has been the destruction of the only two shipbuilding yards in Dublin. If the condition which organised labour now insists upon were accepted, not alone shipping companies, but many other staple industries in the Free State, would inevitably find themselves within a short time in the same position as the shipbuilders

THE ONLY WAY.

"Were the shipping companies—and other industrial interests now inevitably becoming involved in the deadlock—to await an acute financial crisis in their affairs, the result would be even more disastrous for the wage-earners than for their employers. Nothing less than a drastic revision of present rates of wages and working conditions can avert this common disaster.

"It has been foolishly suggested that shipping and other commercial enterprises are anxious to make use of the present depression to crush Labour organisations. So far is this view from the truth that nothing more deeply concerns the shipowners than the present confusion and divisions in the Labour organisations directly involved in the shipping industry. Before discussion and adjustment can take place some person or group of persons must have authority to negotiate upon behalf of the wage-earners. This is the first necessary step to a resumption of work.

"The leader of the Labour Party in the Dail has just made an eloquent and powerful appeal that further efforts should be made to eliminate the casual element in employment. Much has been done in recent years to stabilise workers' incomes, with the result that dockers' employment is now more continuous in the principal Free State ports than in Great Britain. But there is no reason why efforts should not be made to effect further improvements in this direction, and the shipping companies are prepared at any time to enter into the most earnest and friendly discussion with properly accredited Labour representatives to that end.

FUNDAMENTAL PACT.

"Much might be added by way of detail, such as the impossibility of paying differential rates of wages to seamen and firemen recruited at British and Free State ports respectively; the impossibility of successful competition between Free State ports paying excessive wages and other Irish ports with lower wages rates and more favourable working conditions; and the depressing effect of high freights upon export of Irish manufacturers—but, the fundamental fact is that a revision of present conditions is essential to the revival alike of shipping and other industries in the Free State. It is for that reason, and for that reason alone, that the present deadlock has arisen. When this fact is realised by the wage-earners greater general efficiency will begin to prevail, and the cost of living will automatically adjust itself.

THE CONTRAST.

"The following illustrations will prove the absolute necessity for a drastic revision of wages and working conditions, viz.:—

"Pre-War—25 men, at 5s. per day of 10 hours, were employed at a total cost of £6 5s. to perform certain work.

"To-day—35 men, at 14s. per day of 8 hours, total cost £24 10s., are being employed, under complusion of the Union, to perform exactly the same work. If it is found necessary to work 10 hours in order to sail a steamer, 2 hours' overtime at 2s. 4d. per hour is paid to each of the 35 men employed, making the total cost £32 13s. 4d., or an increase of 422 per cent.

"In the overseas and continental trades the pre-war rate per day of 10 hours was 6s., while the present rate per day of 8 hours is 16s.

"In the regular daily cross-Channel trades the pre-war rate per day of 10 hours was 5s., with overtime rate of 8d. per hour, while the present rate per day of 8 hours is 13s., with overtime rate of 2s. 2d. per hour.

"In the other cross-Channel trades with weekly and bi-weekly sailings the pre-war rate per day of 10 hours was 5s., with overtime rate of 8d. per hour, while the present rate per day of 8 hours is 14s., with overtime rate of 2s. 4d. per hour.

On Saturdays, in all trades named above, the maximum time worked is 6 hours, and more often only 5 hours, and for this the full day's pay is paid.

"Also on Saturdays it is found impossible to get men to work at discharge of the Holyhead or Liverpool steamers after 2 p.m., or after 5 p.m. when loading, with the consequence that perishables and live stock have frequently to be left over until Monday awaiting shipment.

"In Belfast work is continued on Saturdays until 9 p.m. in order to clear off all perishable traffic and live stock.

"The wages presently operating at the British ports are:—

"Larger Ports—10s. per day of 8 hours, or 5s. per half-day of 4 hours.

"Smaller Ports—9s. per day of 8 hours, or 4s. 6d. per half-day of 4 hours."

WICKLOW JAIL ESCAPES.

FIVE PRISONERS AND A SENTRY MISSING.

Between 4 and 6 a.m. yesterday five political prisoners, the last of those confined in Wicklow Jail, who were to have been removed this week, escaped.

It is reported that the sentry, who came on duty at 4 a.m., accompanied the prisoners, taking with him a rifle and fifty rounds of ammunition.

GOODS FROM NORTH

BARRED BY THE STRIKE COMMITTEE.

The only fresh development in connection with Dublin's labour troubles is in the direction of curtailing the flow of traffic on the Great Northern Railway line.

Since the cargo boats ceased trading in and out of the Liffey last week the pickets of the Transport Workers' Union have prevented the import or export by the Great Northern Railway of goods which they suspected of being "tainted," in the sense that before the dispute they were seaborne. In this they were assisted by the carters and vanmen, for the most part members of the Union.

Yesterday a ban was put on the delivery into the city of all goods consigned from anywhere in the six Northern counties.

At first this new move looked as if there were a misunderstanding on the part of the pickets, but an official stated that a "prohibition" was to be placed on all goods from across the border. Purely Free State traffic is not to be interfered with. Quite a number of Dublin business men have sought "permits" from the Strike Committee for the delivery of goods from Amiens street.

Some attempt at saving the export trade has been made by the chartering of the steamer Salton by the Irish Dairy Producers' Association. Yesterday she loaded a cargo of butter, cream, and eggs and sailed for Liverpool. The Association expect to have another steamer ready for trade from the North Wall on Thursday.

On both quays yesterday business was confined to the loading or unloading a few vessels, including the boats of Messrs. Guinness. From one of those a cargo of stout, returned from Manchester, because of the dockers' strike there, was being discharged yesterday.

It is stated that the sailors and firemen, whose demand for a monopoly of the manning of Free State vessels was the origin of the present trouble, have recognised the authority of the Transport Union as a medium for negotiations, but there is no talk of negotiations except among the hundreds of the rank and file now idle. They are against the full "cut" as demanded by the employers; but, unless they talk other than they think, they want someone to set about making a bargain, and immediately.

The Transport Union men employed by the wine and tea wholesalers have refused to accept a reduction of wages demanded by the employers.

CORK'S WATER SUPPLY

THREATENED BY SHORTAGE OF COAL FOR PUMPS.

The situation in Cork is unchanged. At present there is no necessity for alarm about the city's food supplies. Certain precautions were taken by merchants some weeks ago, and wholesale houses have large supplies.

At a special meeting of the Cork Waterworks Committee yesterday, convened to consider the coal shortage at the waterworks, the Town Clerk submitted the following report:—

"I beg to report that on Saturday last the resident engineer called my attention to the fact that the supply of coal at the pumping station was running short, and suggested that steps should be taken to acquire a temporary supply during the present Labour trouble. With that object, the resident engineer and myself waited on the Strike Committee of the Dockers' Union and pointed out that the supply available was barely sufficient for one week. We further pointed out that serious consequences would result if, through want of coal, the pumping plant should be closed down and the water supply of the city and suburban area was cut off.

"The Committee was also informed that the Corporation had entered into a contract on the 13th inst. with Messrs. Suttons, Ltd., for a cargo of coal, for which an advertisement had been issued a fortnight previously, and permission was now sought, pending a settlement of the dispute, to obtain a daily supply of five or six tons from the contractors, who readily expressed their willingness to give the same.

"As we have not received the permission asked for, I have, with the approval of the Chairman, called this meeting of the Committee, so that such steps as the Committee may consider necessary may be taken to maintain the water supply to the city and suburbs, which, under existing weather conditions, is extremely difficult."

The Resident Engineer, Mr. O'Riordan, reported that two private firms were willing to supply eighty and a hundred tons of coal respectively. Arrangements in connection with the cartage were left in Mr. O'Riordan's hands.

WATERFORD OUTRAGES

MANY MEADOWS SPIKED.

While Mr. Nicholas Fitzgerald, of Ballinanisla, Bonmahon, Co. Waterford, and a friend, were driving home from a meeting of the Farmers' Union Executive they were "held up" at The Sweep by three armed men, who burned their trap.

During the last three days many other outrages have been reported in connection with the strike of farm labourers. There have been several cases of spiking meadows, and at least three farmhouses and quantities of hay have been maliciously destroyed.

A WEEK'S GRACE.

The flour mills of Messrs. T. Hallinan and Sons, Midleton, which were to have closed on last Friday night as a result of the shortage of grain, due to the dockers' strike, have been kept open for a further week in the hope that a settlement of the shipping dispute may be reached.

PORTUGUESE WAR MINISTER RESIGNS.

LISBON, Monday.

The Minister of War has resigned, and the Prime Minister has temporarily taken over the portfolio.—(Reuter.)

[A Reuter's message of July 19 announced that the Premier had threatened to resign and retire from political life because of Ministerial differences arising out of the case of the Minister of War and Captain Maia.]

IRISH QUESTIONS IN PARLIAMENT.

THE CASE OF JOSEPH DOWLING.

SENTENCE NOT TO BE VARIED.

Lieutenant-Commander Kenworthy, in the House of Commons yesterday, asked whether ex-Private Dowling, late of the Connaught Rangers, was still detained in prison; whether any other prisoners had not been released under the general amnesty, and why this man is still being detained in prison.

Lieutenant-Colonel Guinness, in reply, said that Joseph Dowling was still imprisoned in Great Britain in common with a few other soldiers similarly found guilty of grave offences committed during the war. There had been no general amnesty for such offences as far as the Army was concerned, although, in fact, no man was still serving any sentence for a purely military offence committed during the war. Dowling was convicted by general court martial on July 18, 1918, on three charges, the gravest charges on which in time of war a soldier could be convicted. The charges were as follows:—

1—When a prisoner of war voluntarily serving with the enemy, and serving in the "Irish Brigade."

2—When a prisoner of war voluntarily aiding the enemy by persuading other British prisoners of war to join the armed forces of the enemy.

3—When a prisoner of war voluntarily aiding the enemy by going to Ireland in a German submarine with the object of aiding the King's enemies in prosecuting the war against His Majesty.

He was sentenced to death, but that sentence was commuted to penal servitude for life, and that sentence he was still serving. The amnesty which the hon. and gallant member had in mind was presumably that which had in effect been extended both by the British and Irish Governments to the undisguised and regular supporters of the other party in our late domestic troubles.

It was, however, obvious that a serving British soldier who not only left his own service, but who joined and took an active part in that of an external enemy in time of public peril could not be placed in any such category. His Majesty's Government, therefore, after giving the most careful consideration to the matter, had reluctantly come to the conclusion that they could not advise His Majesty to vary the sentence imposed in this case.

Lieutenant-Commander Kenworthy—While nobody wishes to minimise the gravity of such crimes by a soldier, is the War Office aware that many people who have done much worse things in Ireland—murdered British officers in their beds and so on—have been liberated?

Lieutenant-Colonel Guinness—None of the crimes to which the hon. and gallant gentleman refers took place on active service. I do not think that any of these peace-time crimes can compare with that of a man who deliberately goes over to the enemy and tries to seduce other prisoners of war from their allegiance, into which they, in common with him, have voluntarily entered.

MALICIOUS DAMAGE CLAIMS.

Sir William Davison asked for particulars as to the total amount of defended decrees for malicious damage in Southern Ireland between January, 1919, and July, 1921, which have been paid; what amount remains outstanding; whether the fortnightly payment of Wood-Renton awards has now commenced; and what amount has actually been paid.

Mr. Ormsby Gore replied—The total amount which has been paid by the Free State in respect of defended decrees during the period specified is £265,200, and the total amount remaining unpaid is approximately £150,000. The total amount paid to July 14th by the Free State Government in respect of Wood-Renton awards is £1,358,435 18s. 6d.

COMPENSATION AWARDS.

Answering Sir J. Butcher, Mr. Ormsby Gore said that he had no reason to suppose that the hon. and learned member's complaints that the compensation awarded by the committee presided over by Mr. Justice Wylie, was not in accord with Article 10 of the Treaty were well founded. As the right to compensation, in accordance with Article 10 was a statutory right, he saw no ground for the appointment of a committee, with a judicial personage at its head, to advise the British Government whether such complaints were well founded or not.

Sir J. Butcher—As the Irish Free State have appointed a committee to advise them as to compensation, is it not right that the British Government should appoint their own committee to advise them.

Mr. Ormsby Gore—I do not think that is possible. This being a statutory committee, you cannot have another committee to review the findings of the statutory committee.

Sir J. Butcher—How is the British Government to know that their obligations have been faithfully carried out if they have not got a committee.

Mr. Ormsby Gore—We have no reason to suppose that the Treaty has been broken by the Free State Government.

CONSTITUTIONAL STATUS.

Mr. Ormsby Gore informed Sir J. Butcher that Article 1 of the Treaty provided that Ireland should have the same constitutional status in the community of nations, known as the British Empire, as the other self-governing Dominions, and Article 2 of the Constitution provided that all powers of Government, and all authority, legislative, executive and judicial in Ireland shall be exercised in the Irish Free State through the organisations established by, or under, and in accord, with this Constitution. These provisions were made statutory by the Imperial Parliament by the Irish Free State Agreement Act, 1922, and the Irish Free State Constitution Act, 1922, respectively.

Mr. MacPherson—Are we to understand that the rights vested in British subjects are now declared by this Act null and void?

Sir H. Kingsley Wood—Does it not take away the statutory rights of British subjects?

Mr. Ormsby-Gore—All the people in Ireland are British subjects. Under the Constitution, and under the powers of Dominion Home Rule, it has precisely the same powers as the Dominion of Canada, which could legislate on the question of rights.

Sir W. Davison—Is the hon. gentleman not aware that under the Agreement For Implementing The Treaty it is laid down specifically that legislation shall be introduced into the British Parliament to enable rights which had accrued to British subjects to be set aside; and has any Minister the right to barter away the rights of British citizens?

Mr. Ormsby-Gore—The Treaty, after all, was confirmed by Parliament. I was not the Minister who made the Agreement. It was made by the late Secretary to the Colonies. The question should have been raised then.

RUHR LAW.

LEGALITY OF ORDINANCES NOT TO BE QUESTIONED.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.
FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
COLOGNE, Monday.

A new ordinance issued by the Inter-Allied Rhineland High Commission at Coblentz makes it an offence, punishable by heavy fines and long terms of imprisonment, for any person to question the legality of any ordinance passed by the Commission since the occupation of the Ruhr commenced.

These penalties apply, not only to statements in the Press, but also to verbal or written declarations of all descriptions. The action has been taken in consequence of the fact that, both in the German Press and in courts of law, the legality of the ordinances passed since the Ruhr was occupied has been called to question, since none of them has been enacted with the consent of the British Representative on the High Commission.

It will now be an offence for a German lawyer to plead the illegality of an ordinance before any court in territory occupied by the French and Belgians, while a German judge who decides in a German court of law that such an ordinance is illegal—as it is quite conceivable he might have to—will be sentenced to imprisonment.

The Kolnische Zeitung, commenting on the new ordinance, remarks that it is clear that there is now no more liberty left to the democratic peoples of the Rhine and Ruhr outside the British territory.

PEACE IN THE NEAR EAST.

TREATY TO BE SIGNED TO-DAY.

FLEETS TO EXCHANGE SALUTES.

LAUSANNE, Monday.

The hall of the Lausanne Palace Hotel has already assumed a festive appearance in expectation of the banquet at which the peace delegates are being entertained to-night by the Federal Council of Switzerland. There is a great display of the flags of the nations represented at the Conference, and a profusion of plants and flowers. Covers are laid for seventy, and there will probably be short speeches by the President of the Swiss Confederation and Sir Horace Rumbold on behalf of the delegations. The President, accompanied by several State Councillors, arrived this afternoon, and has taken rooms at the Lausanne Palace. At to-morrow's signature of peace there will be one speech—that of M. Scheurer, the Swiss President.

YUGO-SLAVIA STANDS OUT.

There will be one discordant note at to-morrow's signature. Yugo-Slavia, which did not sign the Sevres Treaty because it considered that the portion of the Turkish debt devolving on it was excessive, will now once more for the same reason not sign the present Treaty. Consequently, from the judicial standpoint, peace will not be established between Yugo-Slavia and Turkey.

MUTUAL GOODWILL.

BRITISH GENERAL'S TRIBUTE TO TURKEY.

General Harington this evening returned the complimentary call which the Turkish Military Governor, Selah Ed Din Adil Pasha, paid him on July 18. General Harington delivered the following address:—

"I have come as a soldier to wish you all success in the peace upon which we are entering. I am pleased to think that the great traditions which existed between the armies of England and Turkey are now being renewed—traditions which recall the memory of the great names of Alma, Inkerman, Sebastopol, and others, which many British regiments proudly bear on their colours.

"We know well that the armies of Turkey and England have adways maintained a respect for each other, whether they have been friends or foes. I am pleased to be in a position to extend my hand as a link which will happily be joined up to-morrow between our armies, and I extend my wishes that this link will be long lasting.

"I am pleased to think that the task is completed, and that we have steered successfully through a difficult period by mutual co-operation. I shall carry away many happy memories of Turkey, and also, I hope, the respect of the Turkish nation, with whom I have come into contact.

"We leave behind in Turkish soil the bodies of many soldiers of the forces of Great Britain and the Dominions who gave their lives in fair fight. We leave them in the confidence that you, in keeping with old traditions, will ever respect their memory."—Press Association's Special Correspondent.

The speeches which the Rumanian and Yugo-Slav delegates were to have delivered at the final sitting of the conference on the 17th, but had not then been prepared, will, according to present arrangements, be inscribed on the minutes of that sitting.

NAVAL COMPLIMENTS.

GREETINGS OF FRIENDLY STATES.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.
FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
CONSTANTINOPLE, Monday.

A naval ceremony, in which both the Allies and Turkey are participating—in which the Allied warships will exchange formal salutes with the Turkish cruisers for the first time since the year 1915—will mark the signing of the Peace Treaty at Lausanne.

The Turkish cruiser, Hamide, which during the Balkan wars, under the command of Reof Bey, menaced the Greek Fleet, is leaving the Golden Horn, where it has been held captive by the Allies since the armistice, and will steam up the Bosphorus to the picturesque palace of the Caliph, and will be joined here by the Allied Fleet for the exchange of salutes during naval manœuvres. The Turkish warship will be joined by the Sultan's yacht, which also has been unused since 1918.

Gradually the importance of the radical concession which Turkey—defeated in the Great War—has obtained from the Allies is being appreciated by the Turks, who are now beginning to feel that the hardships and losses of the Great War were worth while in precipitating a situation where the present position is possible.

Significant of the attitude of the Turks is the arrangement of special ceremonies for those who died in the Great War. Candles are to be burned upon the graves in the three war cemeteries during the night, and Memorial Services are being planned to take place during the day to give thanks for the sacrifices rendered to the nation which, with a peace-giving assurance of an independence to the Turks, unhoped for even by the old régime before 1914, are now no longer felt by the Turk to be in vain. The losess of territory are regarded as insignificant compared to the achievement.

The Allies are announcing that evacuation plans are now complete. Immediately upon notification that the Treaty has been ratified by Angora the Allied troops will embark from the Asiatic side of the Ismidt Peninsular, next from Constantinople, and last from Chanak and Gallipoli.

I understand that the British and French directors of the Ottoman Bank have accepted a proposition from the Turks to form a National Bank, capitalised with half British and French and half Turkish capital.

THE ELECTION.

MR. DE VALERA WILLING TO STAND FOR CLARE.

Mr. de Valera has issued a statement, in which he says:—"Our opponents make a mistake if they imagine that we are going to remain 'on the run.' If the people of Clare select me as their candidate again, I will be with them, and nothing but a bullet will stop me."

NORTH DUBLIN LABOUR CANDIDATE.

At a meeting of the Dublin Labour Party and Trades Council, held in the Trades Hall, Capel street, Dublin, last night, Mr. P. T. Daly was selected as a candidate for North Dublin.

ROSCOMMON FARMERS ACTIVE.

Representatives of the Farmers' Union in the Co. Roscommon have opened their election campaign. They will hold a convention in Roscommon Town on July 31st with the object of selecting four candidates to represent their interests in the county.

A convention of the Cumann na nGaedheal in Cork yesterday selected Mrs. Marie Lynch as a candidate for Cork City.

OLYMPIC GAMES.

AUSTRALIAN GOVERNMENT'S £3,000 GRANT.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The Commonwealth Government has agreed to contribute £3,000 towards the expenses of the Australian team for the Olympic Games in Paris next year, on the condition that the Managing Committee succeed in raising an additional £7,000.—(Reuter.)

The best prospect of maintaining our alliance with France lies in the fullest candour and frankness of speech which is consistent with methods of international courtesy.—Earl of Birkenhead.

MR. McKENNA.

"WILL NOT ENTER THE GOVERNMENT."

QUESTION OF A SEAT.

The Lobby Correspondent of the Central News telegraphs:—

I understand that it is now practically settled that Mr. McKenna will not enter the Government. The arrangement whereby he was to become Chancellor of the Exchequer has broken down owing to the difficulty in finding a seat.

A vacancy could be created for him, but not in the city, and it is for the City of London that Mr. McKenna desired to sit.

The Conservatives of the city esteem Mr. McKenna highly as a banker, but they have not been able to generate any enthusiasm for him as their representative in Parliament. Had they done so, evidence would have been seen in the retirement of one or other of the present members to make room for Mr. McKenna.

Many of the city electors are supporters of a tariff, and they do not relish the idea of having a representative with the Free Trade antecedents of Mr. McKenna.

It is only in the city that Mr. McKenna could have hoped for an uncontested return, and neither his health nor his disposition is suited to a keen election campaign. It is feared that on these grounds the present idea of his returning to politics must be abandoned.

TO-DAY'S LONDON PAPERS.

IRISH LANDOWNERS' RIGHTS.

OMISSIONS IN THE TREATY.

"THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY SAYS:—

In bringing forward his motion yesterday on the pledges given both before and after the signing of the Irish Treaty of 1921 with regard to land purchase and compensation, Lord Midleton followed practically the same lines as those laid down in the letter from Lord Lansdowne, which we published on Saturday.

In the various Home Rule Bills, it has always been an accepted principle with all parties that the protection of the loyal minority and the completion of land purchase should form part of any new Constitution. In the Treaty itself, however, there was no recognition of this fact. The settlement of the question of land purchase, which has always previously been regarded as one of the safeguards essential to the protection of the minority, has been left to the Irish Free State. It is, therefore, incumbent on the present Government to see to it that this omission in the Treaty should, as far as is possible, be repaired.

It seems to us that on general grounds Lord Midleton's contentions are a very reasonable statement of the case. In spite of Lord Birkenhead's defence of the action of the late Government during the period of the negotiations, it is fair to say that, in their anxiety to secure the signing of the Treaty, they did make concessions and consent to omissions in the Treaty which a firmer attitude might have rendered unnecessary, and that these concessions involved the breaking of promises made in the interests of the loyalists in the South.

In any case, it is not likely—desirable though it is that the credit of the Irish Free State should stand high—that anything definite in the way of a guarantee of financial assistance will be settled until the result of the elections in Ireland is known; but it may be taken as certain that the Government, in the words of Lord Midleton's amended motion, is prepared to use its influence to carry out land purchase and compensation pledges given before and after the signing of the Treaty.

DISARMAMENT IDEALS.

LABOUR'S ILLUSIONS.

The Times, in a leading article, says:—In foreign affairs the outlook of the Labour Party is apt to be academic, and in the House of Commons yesterday Mr. Ramsay Macdonald's speech, pointed, as it was, with conviction and high ideals, exhibited all the illusions of his followers as to world conditions.

One of the first natural consequences of the close of hostilities four years ago was that immense armies were disbanded and fleets demobilised. Yet, in spite of that reduction, nowhere carried out more thoroughly than in the British Commonwealth and in the United States, Europe contains more armed men than ever before in peace time.

This country will always prefer to keep its expenditure on the weapons of war at a minimum, and it is not the Labour Party alone that wishes to devote the national wealth to education, public health and the social services.

The best way to promote those pacific sentiments, which can ultimately make armaments unnecessary, is to lend support to the institution which has been formed for that precise purpose, and to work for its universal acceptance. To discredit its efforts by summoning a conference apart from the League at this moment would be to destroy its chance of usefulness in this very sphere of disarmament.

UNSUITABLE EMIGRANTS.

MEN WHO DO NOT WANT WORK.

Attention continues to be drawn in the Australian Press to the number of immigrants who try to return home as stowaways in ships bound for London, writes the Melbourne Correspondent of The Times. A steamer has just landed nine stowaways who have been sent back from the Cape. Twenty-six men, who had been brought to Western Australia as settlers, had stowed away at Fremantle in a ship returning to England. Fifteen had been discovered before the ship sailed, and hunger forced the others to surrender before the Cape was reached. The men, after being brought back to Australia and landed, were offered work by the immigration authorities, but refused it. The office of the High Commissioner in London is blamed for sending unsuitable persons as emigrants from Great Britain.

THE SUSPENDED MEMBERS.

The Daily Telegraph says:—Whether the four suspended Socialist members of Parliament apologise or not is a matter between them and their constituents. They will not return until the House consents, as guardian of its own dignity and controller of its own discipline and procedure. The four members are unfitted by temperament and understanding of public affairs to sit in any kind of public assembly. They can sit in the House only by observing its rules and standard of decency.

DEBATE IN THE LORDS ON IRISH LAND BILL.

"NOT THE LEAST ACHIEVEMENT OF MR. COSGRAVE'S GOVERNMENT."

—LORD BIRKENHEAD.

LORD MIDLETON PUTS THE CASE OF THE LANDLORDS.

Important speeches on Irish affairs were made in the House of Lords yesterday, when the Earl of Midleton moved:—

> That it is incumbent on His Majesty's Government to carry out the pledges as regards land purchase and compensation given both before and subsequent to, the giving of the Irish Treaty in 1921.

The Earl of Midleton asked for a capital sum of £25,000,000 (or £1,000,000 a year) for the Irish landlords, who will suffer serious loss if the Irish Free State Land Bill is passed in its present form.

After Lord Birkenhead had stated that he thought the Land Bill was not the least of the achievements of Mr. Cosgrave's Government, the Duke of Devonshire admitted that the provisions of the bill would affect a great many landlords very severely. When it had gone through its final stages in the Free State Parliament the British Government would give to its proposals the best consideration it could; and, though he could hold out no hopes at present, the Government would consider the position of those who would be affected. If they could, consistently with their other obligations, do anything to help, they would be glad to give the matter every possible consideration.

The motion was changed so as to call on the Government to "use its influence" to get the pledges carried out, and in this form it was accepted.

EARL OF MIDLETON.

Ireland's Franchise Wider Than That of Any Country in the World.

PLEDGES SHOULD BE HONOURED.

The Earl of Midleton said that he desired at the outset to say that he brought this motion forward in no spirit of hostility to the Government, or to the Irish Government, which, he believed, was manfully endeavouring to fulfil an almost impossible task. On the contrary, he believed he could help both the one and the other by appealing to public opinion to back them in demanding that legacies which they had received from previous Governments should be made good.

It was impossible to estimate the liabilities of the Government in respect of Irish affairs without referring to events which had occurred in the tangled web of Irish politics for some years past. As early as 1885 it was recognised that no settlement in Ireland could be made without the question of the land being dealt with, and by successive measures the abolition of dual ownership had been carried very far till it was brought to a halt by the war.

In all the Home Rule Bills it was common ground to all parties concerned that there should be a constitution which should amply protect the minority, and that land purchase should be completed.

To these propositions there was added one which equally obtained support from all sides—that, after an open struggle had broken out between the Government and Sinn Fein, the persons who had been made victims, and whose property had been destroyed during the struggle, should receive adequate compensation.

It was because direct pledges on these subjects seemed to be in danger of non-fulfilment that he was troubling their lordships to-day.

THE 1917 CONVENTION.

"I feel," said his lordship, "some special responsibility in this matter. From time to time up to 1917, I and my friends, as representing the Unionist organisation in Southern Ireland, were consulted by Mr. Asquith's and Mr. Lloyd George's Government. Throughout the Irish Convention of 1917, when a settlement of Irish affairs seemed to be imminent, we were called upon repeatedly by those in authority, and these consultations continued at intervals up to the very moment of the Treaty.

"I must, therefore, ask your lordships to accept our testimony, as of men who were cognisant from the first of the undertaking given by the Government, and in these matters I can refer to the testimony, besides that of Lord Desart and Lord Oranmore and Browne, of Dr. Bernard, the Provost of Trinity College (than whom, I think, no Irishman alive has done more to try and promote a settlement), Mr. Andrew Jameson (Director of the Bank of Ireland), and at one stage of the proceedings, Sir Robert Woods (the member for Trinity College), and Sir Maurice Dockrell, M.P. for South Dublin.

"I mention these names in order that it may not be supposed that anything which I say rests on the testimony of a single individual.

"In 1917 the Irish Convention opened with the understanding by every member who joined it that they were there not to discuss Home Rule, which was already on the Statute book, but to try and discover some form of self-government which could be arrived at by the consent of the whole of Ireland. The party with which I was connected were assigned eight members to attend the Convention out of the 96 summoned, and realised that although they nominated representatives at a sacrifice of cherished principles, they had the assurance of the Government that they would accept anything which the Convention by a substantial majority might approve.

SAFEGUARDS.

"The Convention, with practical unanimity, adopted safeguards which went far to alleviate the distrust which we all felt as to the future of Ireland if separated from this country. Early in the sitting the Ulster leader, who is now unfortunately dead, asked for 40 per cent. of the representation in the Lower House for Ulster, and this was conceded.

"We, on our part, asked for a strong Senate, with some financial powers. This also was conceded. Early in 1918 the leader of the Nationalist Party, Mr. Redmond, consulted me as to whether—if these arrangements were made and he supported them so as to secure a settled policy for Ireland which would enable the law-abiding classes to control the Sinn Fein movement—the Constitution being so settled, the Southern Unionist Party would co-operate with him and the Nationalist Party in the Government of the country.

"On my replying that I had the assent of my colleagues in the Convention to this course, he made the momentous declaration to me that under these circumstances, being convinced that the future prosperity of the country depended on all classes co-operating in establishing stable government, he would be prepared to serve under Sir Edward Carson as the first Prime Minister of Ireland.

IRELAND'S BLACKEST YEARS.

"Had these hopes been realised, the last five years, which are perhaps the blackest in Irish history, would have seen self-Government established on a basis which would have brought prosperity to every class in the country.

"These proposals were eventually adopted by the Convention, but, owing to the strong suspicion in some quarters that they would be reviewed in England and not adopted, the final majority in the Convention was so reduced, that the Government felt justified in reconsidering them.

"The event fully justified the apprehension of those whose trust in the Prime Minister we had not been able to secure.

A NEW POLICY.

"Accordingly, in March, 1918, the Government announced a complete new policy. They proposed to introduce conscription, which should have applied to Ireland, if at all, more than two years before, and, instead of bringing in a bill on the lines of the Convention proposals, they appointed a Committee to consider what form of Home Rule Bill should be adopted.

"The conclusions of the Irish Parties was thrown to the wind, all the wildest passions were aroused, conscription perished still-born, and the new Home Rule Bill was not introduced until nearly two years afterwards.

"During the Convention, and subsequently, I and my friends were called in council repeatedly. The Prime Minister expressed to us, in terms which, from modesty, I could not repeat, the sense of obligations of the whole country to us for what we had done. He specifically bound himself over and over again that, whatever proposals were made should contain safeguards for which we had contended, and which the Convention had conceded to us.

"When the bill of 1920 appeared, not one of these safeguards were included in it. There was no Second Chamber, and, in a country scarred by the recent and vivid animosities, there were no provisions whatever for the representation of the minority.

PLEDGES WATERED DOWN.

"Seeing that between 1918 and 1920 the pledges to 350,000 Southern Unionists have been so watered down, your lordships will perhaps not be surprised to hear that when the Treaty emerged from the midnight discussion in November, 1921, it was found that the agreement had been signed without any Constitution at all.

"The minority were left to the mercies and good feeling of those who had been recently in arms against the Government; no power was given to them to join in the government of their own country; no security was given against the predominance of the elected branch of the Legislature on a franchise wider than that which exists in any country in the world. The absence of such provisions weighs strongly on the present position with regard to land and compensation."

ABDICATED CONTROL.

Lord Midleton then proceeded to review the position of the Coalition Government in 1921 and afterwards, and said that the British Government could not be absolved from taking reasonable precautions that the new Government should be in a position to step into their position before they abdicated control in a country which was full of arms and of disaffected persons.

MR. LLOYD GEORGE'S PROMISE.

He added that the British Government were pledged up to the hilt to complete land purchase. On February 25, 1918, Mr. Lloyd George wrote:—

> If the unanimous report on land purchase commends itself to the Convention, the Government would be prepared to introduce in Parliament, as part of the plan of settlement, a measure for the purpose of enabling Parliament to give effect to the recommendations of the Convention on the subject of land purchase.

"It did commend itself unanimously to the Convention, but the Government did not introduce the bill simultaneously with the amending bill, as they had promised to do," added his lordship, who declared that it was the Coalition Government, and not the Irish leaders, who were responsible for the outrages in Ireland which followed the Treaty.

"The Government did not hesitate to withdraw practically the whole of the troops before the new Government could get a sufficient force to maintain order. Between the signing of the Treaty and the date when it was made effective by Act of Parliament eighty country houses were burnt down in Ireland.

"At the present moment a bill was being passed which would have a serious effect on the position of landlords. These unfortunate men were now forced to take what they were given, because they had no Parliamentary power. They were told they must reduce their arrears of rent by 25 per cent.

"Those arrears were the result of the general campaign begun three years ago, not against the landlords, but against the Government. These men, whose rents were fixed when prices were incomparably lower than at present, were to lose 25 per cent. of their arrears at a time when the banks, which dealt most largely with the agricultural community, had seen their deposits swell from £20,000,000 before the war to £60,000,000 or £70,000,000.

COUNTRY FULL OF MONEY.

"The country was full of money. A concrete illustration very often carried more weight than supposition figures. He knew a landlord in Southern Ireland who owned many thousand acres. He had never had a quarrel with his tenantry. His house had never been burned, like those of most of his friends. His land had never been sold, because the offer of his tenantry was always some two years' purchase less than that of their neighbours, they preferred an easy-going landlord to the unbending State.

"Three years ago his tenants, in common with all other land tenants in Ireland, were ordered not to pay rent. From that moment he had not received a farthing. The interest on his mortgages was unpaid, his family charges could not be met; he was in debt £12,000 to his bankers, and could not borrow any more."

By a measure of the kind of the Land Purchase Bill just passed through the Dail he would be absolutely ruined.

It was not the intention of this country that anybody with an absolutely unblemished record of service to their country and loyalty to the Empire should be treated with such asperity.

UNWILLING LEGATEES.

He was confident that Mr. Cosgrave shared the desire expressed, when this matter was under discussion with the late Mr. Collins and Mr. Griffith, that the landlords would remain in the country, and that those who wished to serve Ireland should remain, irrespective of what their past had been.

He knew that the present Government had become unwillingly the legatees of a position which they did not create, and for which most of them had no responsibility.

He believed the Coalition Government glided insensibly into a morass of pledges, and he believed that they intended to make them good, but that was not done.

His claim was that the British Government were bound to make up the bonus which they promised on tenanted land, and the bonus which might be required for the sale of untenanted land to one of which they were absolutely pledged, and the other of which had followed from the policy which they had adopted.

He thought, in addition, that they had no alternative but to see, in connection with the Irish Government, that private individuals who suffered between the period of the truce and the period when armed resistance to the Irish Government ceased should be put on as favourable terms as those who were so treated before the truce.

These liabilities should be treated as a capital sum, to be met by an issue of bonds. He knew that the circumstances of the country at the moment demanded every economy.

A LEAP IN THE DARK.

During the whole course of these prolonged discussions in the last five years he had never asked that Great Britain should pay one single farthing in relief of Ireland, but reading the statements of responsible statesmen regarding the conditions under which the Irish Treaty was made, he did not see how any man could conceal from himself the fact that that great leap in the dark was not made in consequence of any conviction that it would bring Ireland to a greater prosperity than in the past, but in the hopes of securing contentment, and with the belief that it would remove a sore which had been prejudicial to British relations with America, and which was resented by the Dominions, to whom Britain owed so much.

"If these aspirations are made good, as we hope they will be," he said, "the gain to the British Empire in the future will be incalculable. It is not to be measured in money, though in any emergency it may be worth hundreds of millions to this country.

"May I not urge that, in view of such a prospect, it is worth the sacrifice even as much as £25,000,000 of capital money, representing £1,000,000 a year, in order that British honour may be vindicated, and that the reproach of seeing men who have innocently become the victims of your policy, deprived not merely of their residences in the country which they love, but of means of subsistence, may not remain as a standing reproach to the Parliament and people of this country."

A DEBT OF HONOUR.

VIEW OF LORD ORANMORE AND BROWNE.

Lord Oranmore and Browne, while criticising the course of events, said that he was not making any attack on the Free State Government. On the contrary, he was sure they were doing their best to restore law and order in the country. The payment of compensation to the landlords of Southern Ireland was a debt of honour.

LORD BIRKENHEAD.

TRIBUTE TO THE FREE STATE GOVERNMENT.

The Earl of Birkenhead said that he had nothing to withdraw or to explain in connection with the part he took in the Irish settlement, nor was there anything for him to apologise for. Having listened to the Earl of Midleton and Lord Oranmore and Browne, he was utterly at a loss to understand whether they thought that it was wrong to make the settlement.

It was always easy for a person without responsibility to disparage the efforts of others. The present Government, which included some members of the late Government, had been in office for nine months, yet he understood Lord Midleton to say that he had no reflection to make on them.

"I hope," he said, "that, with due regard to the finances of this country, the Government will make the most generous conceivable provision for the claims of the loyalists of the South of Ireland." I have said that over and over again, with all the explicitness which any Minister could use, nine or ten months ago."

Dealing with land purchase, Lord Birkenhead said that the Irish negotiators had carried out in the spirit, and in the letter, the verbal assurance which they gave in London as to the introduction of legislation dealing with it.

THE PRESENT BILL.

The position was that the British Government then was pledged to dispose of the question of land purchase in order to obtain the signature to the Treaty, a signature which Lord Midleton was as desirous of obtaining as the Government were. It was necessary to look to the Irish Government to introduce a bill to complete land purchase, and it was found, as was to be expected by anyone who understood the conditions in Ireland, that the Irish Government were at least as convinced of the necessity of dealing with the question as the British Government were.

The Irish Government had introduced and passed through the Dail a bill which, in its framework, was based largely on the bill of 1920, but which, he agreed, differed from that bill in some important particulars.

But the bill of 1920, which Lord Midleton appeared to think possessed some verbal sanctity, was a bill which depended on the hypothesis that agreement was reached by the Convention. No such agreement was reached. It depended, in the second place, on the agreement of the landlord and the agreement of the tenant, and no one could claim that anyone was verbally bound to the conditions—first, that there was agreement in the Convention, and, second, that there was agreement between landlord and tenant.

"What is the position of the present bill?" he said. "The Free State Government brought landlords and tenants together. We know, because it has been published that the meeting was dissolved because it was not possible to attain to an agreement. On such a failure the proposals contained in the Irish bill were brought forward, and it will repay your lordships to study somewhat carefully the actual effects of this bill, the passage of which through the Irish Parliament is to-day almost assured.

ARREARS.

"The tenants will pay their arrears of rent and the purchase annuities prescribed by the bill. I, for one, believe that anyone who knows what the state of Ireland has been for the last four years will claim the passage of this bill as not the least among the achievements of Mr. Cosgrave's Government, and one of the most intelligent signs of the restoration of good rule and government in the Irish Free State.

"The bill provided for the acquisition, free of cost to the landlord, of the landowner's interest at a price varying from 15 to 16½ years' purchase of the gross rent, and gave the landowner a permanent and undiminished net income from 67½ to 73 per cent. of his present gross rentals."

Lord Birkenhead observed that there was still in Great Britain a considerable body of people who thought the whole settlement was a ghastly surrender and error. The simple fact was that the alternative to the Treaty was civil war, in which a hundred thousand Irishmen would have resisted the continued attempt to impose on Ireland the government in this country.

The Irish Free State was attempting to carry out loyally and faithfully its obligations. Two brave men had sealed their cause with their lives—Collins, who died on the field of battle, and Griffith, who lost his life in a desperate attempt to restore order out of chaos. Both had fallen, but the torch had passed to other hands not less to be relied upon to make the settlement a permanent success.

DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE.

PROMISE OF CABINET'S CONSIDERATION.

The Earl of Donoughmore expressed acceptance of the settlement of the late Government, but added that it was not worth while signing that settlement if in so doing the Government had to throw over all its pledges to its friends. (Hear, hear.)

The Duke of Devonshire, the Colonial Secretary, in reply, said that the Government accepted all the obligations which fell to it in connection with the difficult heritage of the problem of Ireland. Although the power of the British Government to initiate legislation on the subject of Irish land had now passed, the Government felt bound to see that the interests of those for whom they were until recently responsible received adequate justice. They had to consider the proposals which were now before the Irish Parliament were such as would satisfy the obligations of honour which lay upon them. He admitted that the provisions of the bill would affect a great many landlords very severely. He presumed the bill would pass substantially in its present form. When it had gone through its final stages the British Government would give to its proposals the best consideration it could, and, though he could hold out no hopes at present, the Government would consider the position of those who would be affected consistently with other obligations.

The Duke of Northumberland said that by the agreement made on January 24th, 1922, which implemented the Treaty, the Irish Provisional Government undertook that the principle should be admitted that fair compensation should be paid in respect of injuries which came under the enactments relating to criminal injuries. That pledge had been broken, not only in the spirit, but in the letter. The enactments relating to criminal injuries were in abeyance, if not actually repealed, and a totally new code had been substituted under the Damage to Property Act.

Both in regard to the question of consequential damage and to the many other points in that bill great injuries had been inflicted on the loyalists. They were also paid in bonds, the worth of which they had no means of judging.

Lord Willoughby De Broke said that there was great force in the statement that it was the moral duty of this country to make suitable provision for the Irish loyalists who had been driven from their homes. To support these people was part of the price which they had to pay in this country for the repeal of the Union.

The Duke of Devonshire said that he could only repeat the undertaking that the Government would adhere to the pledge given in the letter written by Mr. Winston Churchill on July 26th. The Government were most anxiously watching the situation, and would endeavour to see that the pledge was implemented. Although he did not know the nature of the Bonds to be issued in payment of the compensation, it was clearly to the advantage of the Free State that their credit should stand high, and it was equally the British Government's wish that everything should be done to give the greatest possible value to the securities in which the various payments were made. He hoped that, if they found any likelihood of a considerable fall in the value of those securities, both Governments would be able to work together to devise means by which that deplorable contingency might be avoided.

Lord Midleton said that, as a general principle, he considered it desirable to divide the House on a motion, but on this occasion he would not follow that course. He desired, with the permission of the House, to alter the motion to read:—"That it is incumbent on His Majesty's Government to use its influence to carry out the pledge as regards land purchase and compensation given by them before and subsequent to the signing of the Irish Treaty in 1921."

The Duke of Devonshire—I hope the Earl of Midleton will not take that as any pledge that I shall bring pressure to bear on the Irish Government. I want to be free to consider the question later on.

The motion in its altered form was carried nem. con.

DUBLIN THEATRES.

GAELIC AT THE GAIETY.

Last night at the Gaiety Theatre the week to be devoted to plays in Irish, original and translated, and to Irish music, began with an interesting programme. The little piece by Dr. Douglas Hyde, "The Tinker and the Fairy," is well-known. Its poetic idea and homely touches of humour were faithfully followed by Nuala Ní Mhorain (the Fairy), Gearoid O Lochlainn (the Tinker), Tadhg O Scanaill (the Farmer), and Muiris O Cathain (the Youth).

In "The Bear," by Tchekov, translated into Irish by Fiachra Eilgeach, the little widow, devoting herself in solitude to the memory of her husband, was played by Brid Ní Eigeartaigh, with a restraint that made a fine foil to the storm and passion of Muiris O Cathain (the heir to the estate), while Tadhg O Scanaill ably played the old manservant.

Mr. Arthur Darley's clear tone gave to the "Irish airs" much human appeal.

Though some of the other artistes were unable to be present, their presence was promised later in the week, and other singers gave examples of traditional Irish songs. The singing in kindred Gaelic of Mr. Neil MacLean was interesting. His rhythmic style, especially in the Hebridian Love Lilt, was most artistic.

The orchestra, under Mr. Nabarro, gave some interludes of Irish and Scottish airs.

THEATRE ROYAL.

G. H. Elliott, a chocolate-coloured "coon," had an enthusiastic reception by large audiences in the Theatre Royal last night, when he appeared in his latest London successes, including: "When the Bees Make Honey" and "California." He also sang with great success the old favourite, "The Sentimental Coon." An item that was appreciated for its grace was "La Pedestal Equipose," by the Zanfrellas, two accomplished artistes, who introduced beauty of movement into their exhibition. Boy Ronald showed some clever juggling tricks. A laughable Scots comedy playlet entitled "My Husband," by Ellis Drake, was presented by Ellis Drake and her company, who made the most of the humour of the dialogne. Emilie Hayes has a good voice, which she used to advantage in her songs. The comedy element was also supplied by Nell Leslie, Harry Taft, as "The New M.P.," and Claude Gardner.

TIVOLI THEATRE.

Nine music hall favourites of a generation ago received a fine reception at the Tivoli Theatre last night. Phil Hermann presided, and revived sad, but proud, memories when he sang the ballad of the heroes of the Kingstown lifeboat. There was T. W. Royal, the clog-dancing champion, wearing the championship belt presented to him thirty years ago by Dan Leno. Florrie Gallimore sang and acted her famous "Yorkshire Girl." Very pleasing was Lillie Currie's "Dear Old Boyhood Dreams," and Lottie Lennox roused the "house" as she roused it twenty years ago when she first sang on the same stage, then the Lyric, "Put on Your Ould Green Bonnet." Then there were Jack Hall, and Ada Fawn, and Marcus Boyle, and Cullen and Carthy. Just as in the old days, the audience joined in the choruses, asked for and received encores.

ABBEY THEATRE.

The Hervey Grey Comedy Company is staying at the Abbey Theatre for a second week, and a hearty reception was given to it last night, when it played Sheridan's comedy, "The Rivals." The pity is that the stage is entirely too small to allow the actors the scope that they ought to have, but this difficulty is forgotten in the earnestness with which they play their parts.

The sparkling wit of the dialogue and the drollery of the situations were fully appreciated by the large audience. Mary O'Hea was an admirable Mrs. Malaprop, and Earle Grey presented a dashing impersonation of Bob Acres. The other characters were:—Sir Anthony Absolute, Horace Wentworth; Captain Absolute, Cecil Parker; Faulkland, A. Sofaer; Sir Lucius O'Trigger, Ralph Richardson; Fag, W. H. Sherwood; David, Frank J. Fay; Coachman, Frank J. Fay; Pompey, Gerard Fay; Julia, Miss Joan Garstin; Lucy, Miss Mary Anthony; Lydia Languishe, Miss Grizelda Hervey.

Dr. Larchet's orchestra afforded the audience much pleasure by its musical performance.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.

"Bonnie Mary," a play in which there are many dramatic situations, was performed at the Queen's Theatre last night. The acting was of a very high order, and in this respect special mention must be made of Tom Moran, William Macready, Valentine Vousden, Billy Irving, and Miss Evelyn Lund. The plot is in no way common-place, and its apeal to last night's audience was unmistakable. Attractive scenery and appropriate music added considerably to a really good entertainment.

CASE OF JOHN McPEAK.

WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS NOT NECESSARY.

COSTS AGAINST THE MILITARY.

(King's Bench Division, before the Lord Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Dodd.)

In the case of the King (at the prosecution of John McPeak) v. General Richard Mulcahy, Commander-in-Chief of the Irish Free State Army,

Mr. Michael Comyn, K.C., with whom was Mr. James Comyn (instructed by Mr. Sean O hUadhaigh), for the prosecutor, John McPeak, said that in this case he got liberty from Mr. Justice Powell, sitting in the Court of King's Bench, to serve notice of motion for an application for a writ of habeas corpus in the case of John McPeak, a Scotsman and civilian, who was brought under a civil warrant from Glasgow to Cork. The civil charge was not proceeded with, and he was discharged from custody and immediately re-arrested by the military. These were the facts stated in the affidavit, upon which he (Mr. Comyn) applied for leave to serve this notice of motion, which was granted by Mr. Justice Powell.

The notice stated that counsel, pursuant to leave granted by order of Mr. Justice Powell, on the 16th July, would move for an order that a writ of habeas corpus ad subjiciendum should issue, directed to General Richard Mulcahy, Commander-in-Chief of the Army of the Irish Free State, directing him to have before the Court the body of John McPeak, with the reasons for his detention; which application would be grounded on the affidavit of Sean O hUadhaigh, filed on the 16th July, the nature of the case, and the reasons to be offered.

ARRESTED AT GLASGOW.

Counsel read the affidavit of Mr. Sean O hUadhaigh, which stated that he was solicitor for John McPeak, who was arrested at Glasgow on a charge of larceny at Mill street, in the County of Cork, of an armoured car, and was conveyed under a civil warrant from Glasgow to Cork City, where he was placed in civil custody, and was, until Thursday, the 12th July, 1923, under remand, charged with the said offence. On Thursday, 12th July, McPeak was brought before the District Justice at 7.30 p.m., and charged on remand, when Captain Healy, the State Solicitor for West Cork, applied for his discharge upon the grounds that he was unable to produce any evidence, as the military would not come forward.

Mr. William Mockler, the solicitor who represented the accused, protested, and suggested an adjournment to have State summonses served, but the District Justice discharged the accused, although the accused was willing to plead guilty to the offence. The accused was released from custody, and immediately re-arrested by the military, on the 12th July, 1923.

Mr. Comyn said that an affidavit, made by General O'Sullivan, had been handed to them twenty minutes ago. There was another affidavit made by Mr. O hUadhaigh on Saturday evening, and which they wished to serve now. He thought it would be necessary that both affidavits should be read.

The Attorney-General (Mr. Hugh Kennedy, K.C.), who with Mr. Timothy Sullivan, K.C., and Mr. John O'Byrne (instructed by Mr. M. A. Corrigan, Chief State Solicitor) appeared for the respondent, General Richard Mulcahy, said that the affidavit of Mr. O hUadhaigh had not been served.

Mr. Comyn—Neither has the affidavit of General O'Sullivan been served until twenty minutes ago.

The Attorney-General—It may shorten matters if I say that this man has been recharged and formally returned for trial. He is now in civil custody.

The Lord Chief Justice—Is this the same case referred to in this morning's papers?

The Attorney-General—Yes; a mishap took place. The witnesses were not present, and the Justice discharged the prisoner. The witnesses were in Dublin, and did not know of the hearing. The man was recharged. He was anxious to plead guilty according to this affidavit.

Mr. Comyn—In the meantime his brother was arrested.

The Lord Chief Justice asked Mr. Comyn to read General O'Sullivan's affidavit.

GENERAL'S AFFIDAVIT.

Mr. Comyn read the affidavit of Gearoid O'Suilleavain, of Military Headquarters, Parkgate street, Dublin, Adjutant-General, who stated that he had caused careful inquiries to be made into the proceedings against John M'Peak and was satisfied that it was due to a fatality that evidence against the prisoner was not produced before the District Justice on the 12th July, 1923. The persons who could give evidence were practically all members of the Army, stationed in Dublin. They were not notified that the case was coming on, and that their attendance would be required on that date, and he was informed, and believed, that they were not aware of the fact that the case was coming on. When the prisoner was discharged from custody by order of the District Justice he was arrested by military police pending instructions.

When the facts of this case were brought under the notice of the deponent he directed that the prisoner should be handed back into civil custody, so that the charge against him might be proceeded with in the ordinary way. He was duly handed back, and charged before a District Justice in Cork on the 21st July, 1923, when the Justice, having heard the evidence, returned the prisoner for trial to the next court of competent jurisdiction. The prisoner was now being detained by the civil authorities in accordance with the order of the District Justice.

Mr. Comyn, commenting on the affidavit, said that General O'Sullivan must have been misrepresented by his subordinates, because at the time referred to in the concluding paragraph there was a capital charge against the prisoner before military tribunals.

The Lord Chief Justice—So far as General O'Sullivan's affidavit is concerned, in itself it is a complete answer to the habeas corpus.

Mr. Comyn submitted that it was not.

The Lord Chief Justice asked, if the prosecutor was now in proper custody, where was the claim for a writ of habeas corpus.

Mr. Comyn said that their lordships had been asked to give many judgments which seemed to be against the liberty of the subject. Now when there was a case in which their lordships could give a decision in favour of the liberty of the subject they were not allowed to do it, but the prisoner was spirited away from their jurisdiction.

The Lord Chief Justice said that there was nothing to prevent the Court giving a decision if, in their opinion, they had the right to do so.

TRIBUTE TO CÆSAR.

Mr. Comyn asked for liberty to use now the affidavit of Mr. O hUadhaigh, which would explain the whole facts of the case, and which exhibited the charge sheet.

The Lord Chief Justice said that he would give Mr. Comyn leave to read the affidavit. He would have to pay the usual tribute to Cæsar.

Mr. Comyn—We will undertake that.

The Attorney-General said that he had not seen this affidavit. It was possible that this affidavit might contain allegations of various kinds which he might properly answer.

Mr. Comyn said that there was no allegation. He would not object to the Court allowing the Attorney-General an opportunity of answering.

The Attorney-General said that the whole object of this was to try to get allegations of this kind into the Press.

Mr. Comyn—My friend is apparently afraid of publicity.

The Attorney-General—I am not. I protest against using irregular methods for this irregular purpose.

In the course of further argument Mr. Comyn said that he did not say that General O'Sullivan had said anything in his affidavit which he did not believe to be correct, but he had been obviously misled by his subordinates.

The Lord Chief Justice, having seen Mr. O hUadhaigh's affidavit, said that it would have been of very great relevance if the prosecutor was still in military custody. Having been originally brought over on a civil warrant he was removed by collusion or otherwise into military custody. That was a very strong case, indeed. But it now appeared that he had been restored to civil custody. At the moment he was unable to see what further relief he could get from the Court if he was regularly in civil custody.

Mr. Comyn said that nothing had been done there which was not proper.

The Lord Chief Justice said that the documents mentioned in the first schedule to the affidavit were the only documents which had any bearing upon this case, as far as he could see.

Mr. Comyn read a letter from the Office of Command Legal Officer, Command Headquarters, Miceal Barracks, Cork, dated 16th July, 1923, and written to Messrs. O Caoilte and O hUadhaigh, solicitors.

THE CHARGES.

Mr. Comyn read the charge sheet, which was as follows:—

The accused, John McPeak, machine-gunner, Armoured Car Unit, Cork Command, a soldier of the regular forces, is charged with:—(When on active service) the offence of deserting the forces.

First charge (Sec. 7, Sub-Sec. (1) of Regulations), in that he, at Bandon, in the County of Cork, in the Cork Command, on the 21st day of December, 1922, absented himself from his unit until apprehended at the courthouse, in the City of Cork, by the military authorities, on the 12th day of July, 1923.

Second charge (Sec. 3, Sub-Sec. (1) of Regulations), in that he, at Bandon, in the County of Cork, in the Cork Command, on the 21st day of December, 1922, did treacherously assist the enemy, that is to say, the irregular forces, by delivering and handing over to them the armoured car "Slievenamon," with the fittings, guns, and ammunition for same, the property of the Quartermaster-General of the National forces.

Third charge (Sec. 11, Sub-Sec. (2) of Regulations), in that he, at Bandon, in the County of Cork, in the Cork Command, on the 21st day of December, 1922, did make away with one Rolls-Royce armoured car, value a thousand pounds (£1,000) and upwards, with fittings, guns, and ammunition for same, by delivering the said car, fittings, guns, and ammunition to the enemy, that is to say, the irregular forces.

Mr. Comyn said the date of that document was the 13th July, 1923, and the date of the service in Cork was the 13th July; and he thought that bore out what he had said in reference to the affidavit of General O'Sullivan—that he had been obviously misled by his subordinates. Having read what his lordship had allowed him to read in that affidavit, he now submitted that he was entitled to read the other facts stated in the affidavit.

The Lord Chief Justice—You have all the facts now—have you not?

Mr. Comyn—No. There are two facts—and I think it is only fair to the prisoner, in whatever custody he may be, that they should be known—there are two facts set out in the affidavit of Frank McPeak which were in favour of his brother. After the decision in Clifford and Sullivan, I would be entitled to use that affidavit. Counsel submitted that the Court should consider the treatment of the prisoner from the moment the notice of motion had been served and the peril he had been in.

The Attorney-General said that if his friend was suggesting that their affidavit showed that there had been some ill-treatment, there was no such affidavit.

Mr. Comyn said that he wished to state positively that he made no suggestion whatever that John McPeak, the prisoner, in Cork had been subjected to any ill-treatment. What he said was illegal treatment.

After further argument, counsel asked the Court to allow his client the costs of the motion.

The Lord Chief Justice said that the Court would like to hear the Attorney-General upon the question of costs.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

The Attorney-General said that this man was a soldier, and he was brought over here on trial on a charge that he, having been a soldier in the army that was defending the peace of this country, deserted with an armoured car, and, according to his solicitor's affidavit, he was anxious to plead guilty to that charge.

Mr. Comyn—In order to escape——.

The Attorney-General said that he mentioned that to show that he was a person entirely without merits. He was brought over here on the charge; and the magistrate, owing to the mishap of the witnesses not being in Court, discharged him, and the military took him into custody.

The Lord Chief Justice said if he was merely detained in custody that would be one thing. But it appeared from a document that was sent by the officer in Cork that there was a charge formulated against him on which, according to military law, he could have been executed.

The Attorney-General said that the fact that the military while the prisoner was in custody formulated a charge on which they did not proceed was merely an incident, and had never brought the man into actual peril. The civil charge would have been resumed instantly at the instance of the Government the moment the witnesses could have been got down, irrespective of an application for habeas corpus.

Mr. Comyn said that his client had fought with great distinction in the great war for four years in the Highland Light Infantry, and he was brought over to Ireland as a machine gunner.

JUDGMENT.

The Lord Chief Justice, in giving the decision of the Court, said that so far as the civil authorities were concerned there was not the slightest suggestion but that they had acted in perfect good faith in this matter. The question remained as regards the military authorities. If they had simply detained him pending the instructions of their Commander-in-Chief the matter would have been very different. But having got possession of him on the 12th July, on the 13th they formulated three serious charges against him. Proceedings were taken for the purpose of rendering him amenable to the military law; and if the sentence was approved of by the Executive Council he could have been executed.

That being so, it was a matter of vital importance to him to apply to that Court at the earliest moment for a writ of habeas corpus. If nothing else had intervened the Court would in the circumstances have granted that writ, and granted it, he was sure, without the opposition of the Attorney-General, whose anxiety it was—and it was the anxiety of all of them—to uphold civil law in this country. This charge having been formulated against this man, it was impossible to say that he was not in jeopardy, and consequently it was incumbent upon him to come to that Court. And although, through the action of the civil authorities, the writ of habeas corpus was no longer necessary, that did not absolve the military authorities from lability to costs. They thought, under the circumstances, that costs ought to be paid by the respondent, General Mulcahy, Commander-in-Chief of the Irish Free State Forces.

FRANK M'PEAK'S CASE.

The case of the King (at the prosecution of Frank McPeak) v. General Richard Mulcahy, Commander-in-Chief of the Irish Free State Army, was then taken.

Mr. Comyn, K.C., said that this case came up on a notice of motion similar to that in the case of John McPeak. When John McPeak was placed in custody in Cork his brother, Frank McPeak, who was also a Briton, who had been through the war, a member of the Royal Navy, came from Glasgow to Dublin to see about the defence of his brother. He went to the office of Mr. O hUadhaigh to give instructions for the defence of his brother, and took other measures for his defence. He was unable to return to Glasgow on the same day upon which he arrived in Dublin, and he took lodgings for the night. In the middle of the night he was arrested and conveyed in military custody to a military barrack. He (Mr. Comyn) would say nothing further except what appeared by affidavit. When it was found that he was in military custody Mr. O hUadhaigh made an affidavit in these terms——

The Attorney-General—This man is at large.

The Lord Chief Justice—Then there is nothing in the case.

Mr. Comyn—Except the question of costs and to show your lordship the merits of the case and the extreme necessity there was in this case for getting an order for habeas corpus, and also for making the application to Mr. Justice Samuels.

Counsel read the affidavit of General O'Sullivan, which stated:—

"The military authorities have for some time past been aware of the existence of a conspiracy in Scotland, having for its object the acquisition of arms and ammunition and the importation of same into the Irish Free State for the purpose of being used by Irregulars in their activities against the Forces of the State. The above-named Frank McPeak was arrested on suspicion of being implicated in the said conspiracy. His case was duly investigated, and he was released from custody on the 20th July inst. and is now at liberty."

Mr. Comyn submitted that he should be at liberty to read the affidavit sworn by Frank McPeak himself. He wanted to show that while he was in custody he was in peril. The affidavit showed that there was a charge formulated against him and it showed that General O'Sullivan was not fully informed.

The Lord Chief Justice said that they had no evidence that any charge had been formulated against him. All they had was the fact that he had been detained on suspicion.

Mr. Comyn—On the merits, am I not entitled to show that the application was necessary, that his life was threatened, and that General O'Sullivan's affidavit is not correct?

The Lord Chief Justice said that there was no legal charge against him; and in these circumstances they did not give costs.

The Court refused to allow Mr. Comyn to read the prosecutor's affidavit, and made no rule on the habeas corpus motion.

DUBLIN CITY HALL.

CORPORATION REGAINS POSSESSION.

At a special meeting of the Dublin Corporation yesterday, Alderman A. Byrne, Acting Lord Mayor, announced that the City Hall and Municipal Buildings were handed over to the Town Clerk on Thursday last by Captain Kelly, Quartermaster, 8th Infantry Battalion. The building had sustained damage, which was being jointly investigated by the City Architect and an official from the Board of Works. Arrangements were being made to have a conference of the Chairmen and Vice-Chairmen of Committees with a view to deciding the best means of utilising the accommodation afforded by the buildings.

Alderman Byrne read a letter from Mr. James Brady with regard to street trading in South Great George's street. Mr. Brady requested that the Corporation be asked to inquire and report as to the possibilities of acquiring the vacant plot, formerly known as the "Fancy Fair," under the Markets or Public Health Acts, and having it opened as a retail market for these small traders, who instructed him that they would most willingly go into such a local market if it were opened for their use.

Mr. McIntyre proposed, and Alderman Sir A. Beattie seconded, that the letter be referred to the Street Markets and Finance Committees.

Mr. Daly said the whole question of street trading should be referred to the Committees.

Mr. McIntyre said that, as Chairman of the Streets Committee, with Mr. Lawlor, he had had an interview with the new Chief Commissioner of the Police, who proposed to prepare new traffic regulations. When they drew the Commissioner's attention to the fact that the Committee would like to see the matter of street trading settled in a proper way, beneficial to the city, and without in any way harming the people engaged in it, he promised to consider it in connection with the new regulations.

The motion was passed.

HOUSING QUESTION.

Mr. John Lawlor said that there were at present 90 families in Dublin under notice to quit. Ten families were being put out of one house in Henrietta street, which was in a dangerous condition. Was there any chance of getting accommodation for these people? Could they not build huts for them? There were 20 families in King street similarly situated.

Mr. O'Callaghan said he had suggested on a former occasion that certain houses should be taken possession of in places like Fitzwilliam square.

Mr. Maw Coghlan Briscoe suggested that they should get a return of the aristocratic slum owners in Dublin.

In reply to questions, the Law Agent said that they had power to put a house into order and collect a year's rent.

Councillor P. T. Daly said that they could not put these people out, because they had no alternative accommodation. All over Dublin there were houses being held idle in order to get fancy rents. He moved that the matter be referred to the Housing Committee to take the necessary steps to bring the matter under the attention of the Government.

Councillor McIntyre seconded the motion, which was passed.

MUSIC IN THE PARKS.

Mr. O'Flanagan proposed a motion to the effect that it was desirable that the Public Health Committee should be empowered to pay for bands in the Phœnix Park and at St. Stephen's Green Park during the summer season, and that the Town Clerk should be instructed to take all necessary action.

Mr. McIntyre seconded.

Mr. Daly said the Public Health Committee had made as much provision as it could, but it was a very small sum.

The resolution was passed.

CHEMICAL INSTITUTE FOR IRELAND.

NEW ORGANISATION FORMED.

An organisation, such as exists in other countries, has been set up in Ireland to control and regulate the standard of admission to the profession of chemistry.

A general meeting of chemists resident in Ireland has appointed a committee to put into effect the general purposes of the Chemical Institute for Ireland, which are briefly enumerated below:—

The safeguarding of the public by ensuring:—

1—That all chemical operations in Government laboratories or institutions, or in other laboratories supported wholly or partially by public funds, be under the direct control of a registered professional chemist;

2—That in Irish Courts of Law only registered professional chemists be permitted to give expert chemical evidence in penal cases;

3—That Public Analysts be registered professional chemists, and that they shall conform with all requirements of the Controlling Board in connection with their duties as Public Analysts;

4—The maintenance of a high standard of efficiency on the part of registered professional chemists.

The Committee have drafted regulations for the training of chemists desirous of becoming members of the Institute. The course of training extends over a minimum period of four years, and a register will be maintained of chemists qualified to take part in chemistry as applied to industrial, analytical, and agricultural work, as well as research and teaching.

It is the intention of the Committee to apply to the Government at an early date for formal recognition, by charter or otherwise, of the proposed Chemical Council as the authority for the registration of professional chemists.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

THE GENERAL ELECTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—In reference to your admirable article in this day's Irish Times, would it not be well for a number of business men, who have no axe to grind, to submit their names for election, as supporters of the Nationalist Party, at the forthcoming Convention to be held on the 1st August at No. 5 Parnell square? After all, there can be only three parties to contest the forthcoming election—the Farmers' Party, with an axe to grind; the Socialist Party, and the Treaty Party, out for peace and good-will to all men.

There can be no one who followed the debates in the Dail but must admire the attention that was given to any suggestions made by the Trinity College members during the present session.—Yours, etc.,

"M. M."

Bray, Co. Wicklow, July 23rd, 1923.

OUR HOSPITALS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I wonder whether many of your readers noticed an admirable suggestion made lately by Mrs. Stanley Baldwin. It was that for every day of health and strength a penny should be put into a hospital collecting box as a thank-offering. I, for one, mean to adopt the suggestion.—Yours, etc., "Q.E.D."

BLACKROCK ELECTRIC LIGHTING SCHEME.

Mr. J. P. McCabe, Chairman of the Blackrock Urban District Council, writes:—"Notwithstanding the many statements publicly made and fully reported in the Press, it would appear that the position of the electric lighting scheme for Blackrock District remains misunderstood. Briefly, the facts are these. In the year 1901 the Blackrock Urban Council applied for and obtained powers from the English Board of Trade to provide an electrical supply for the District. These powers remained in abeyance for several reasons, until 1914, when the Council adopted a municipal scheme, which received the necessary departmental sanctions. Tenders were invited and accepted, but the Treasury, owing to the exigencies of the war, held that the scheme was not of an urgent nature, and refused their sanction to private or public borrowing. The powers of the Council were, however, not permitted to lapse, and were renewed from time to time without any expense to the ratepayers.

"More recently, Mr. Brown, representing a syndicate and modernised construction, approached the Council to take over its powers and supply electricity on terms much more favourable than obtain in Dublin, and the Council entered into a legal agreement with him. It then became necessary to apply to the Free State Government for sanction to transfer the Council's original powers; and, as may be well understood, the change of Government and all that has intervened, caused unavoidable delay to that sanction. The Ministry concerned approves the scheme, and it now awaits the formal sanction of our Parliament.

"Mr. Brown, on the other hand, must form a public company, within the jurisdiction approved by the Government, before the Urban Council will be authorised to hand over its powers; and when all these necessary preliminaries have been accomplished, it will still be obligatory upon Mr. Brown to carry out the conditions of the legal agreement which binds him and the Council. If he fails to do so, the powers, original and conferred, automatically revert to the Council, which would then have to face reconsideration of an alternative electrical supply for the district. I wish to point out that the Council's somewhat arduous endeavours have not entailed the loss of a penny to the ratepayers, which, I imagine, will not be unsatisfactory to them."

NEW ISSUE.

NEWFOUNDLAND POWER AND PAPER COMPANY, LTD.

The Bank of England is to-day offering £2,000,000 5½ p.c. "B" Mortgage Deb. Stock of the Newfoundland Power and Paper Company, Ltd., the principal and interest of which are guaranteed by the Government of Newfoundland. The "A" 4½ p.c. Mortgage Debenture Stock was recently subscribed in London on the guarantee of the British Government. The "B" Stock is issued at 98½ per cent. The interest is payable on January 15 and July 15, and the first payment of £2 will be made on January 15 next. Redemption will be by means of a sinking fund, commencing in 1928, and calculated to redeem the whole of the stock at par on or before July 15, 1943. The company owns valuable water rights and land and extensive timber limits in the colony. Sir W. G. Armstrong, Whitworth and Co., of Elswick Works, have entered into a contract for the construction of a complete electric power development and for the construction and equipment of pulp and paper mills, with the requisite power station and installations, at a cost of £1,755,538, and the proceeds of the "A" Debenture Stock will be used in payment therefor. The proceeds of the "B" Debentures are to be expended primarily on the works to be carried out in Newfoundland and for the payment of interest on the stock for a period of two years. The "B" Debentures will be a specific charge on the whole of the freehold and leasehold properties of the company, subject only to the "A" Debenture Stock. Applications must be made for not less than £100 or multiples thereof, and applicants should use the form attached to the prospectus on page 9. The Debentures are well secured, and no doubt they will be taken up as quickly as the "A" Stock. There is apparently a great future before the Newfoundland Pulp Mills. The list of applications will close on or before Friday next.

Chicago, Monday.

WHEAT opened easy, ⅛c. to ⅛c. lower, and further receded on bearish weekly foreign statistics, weaker cables, and liquidation; then rallied on adverse North-West crop reports; but talk of better weather, larger interior receipts, and outsiders holding off caused an easy close at ⅛c. to ⅛c. fall. Spot dull. No 2 hard winter, spot, 101⅛; No. 3 hard winter, 100⅛. July, 99⅛; September, 98⅛; December, 101⅛.

CORN opened irregular, ⅛c. up to ⅛c. down, and went higher on adverse weather, small stocks, covering of July shorts, and buying by South-West cash houses; but declined later under large receipts and commission houses selling. LAND BILL PASSES THROUGH DAIL.

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE.

LABOUR AND PUBLIC SAFETY BILL.

Two important measures—the Land Bill and the Public Safety Bill—passed through the Dail yesterday. When the former was under discussion the Minister for Agriculture was congratulated by several members on the skill with which he had piloted the measure through its various stages.

The Labour Party maintained its opposition to the Public Safety Bill to the last, and challenged a division on every amendment that it proposed during the report stage. At one time it looked as if the sitting might be prolonged, and the Minister for Home Affairs gave notice that he would move the suspension of the 8.30 rule. The business, however, was completed in the scheduled time. The Labour Party withdrew from the House before the final motion was put.

THE LAND BILL.

A CHORUS OF PRAISE.

The Speaker took the chair at 3.13.

The House took up the report stage of the Land Bill.

Mr. P. J. Hogan, Minister for Agriculture, proposed, and Mr. E. Blythe, Minister for Local Government, moved, that the bill be received for final consideration.

Mr. Thomas Johnson said that the principle underlying the Land Bill in respect of the purchase of the landlord's interest might be applied to other interests in the State with advantage to the community at large. That was one of he main reasons why he supported the bill.

Mr. Hogan said that he did not see the point of the deputy's statement, though he was anxious to see it. They never would get anywhere unless they got right down to the facts of the case. Before they could get much further along the lines suggested by the deputy, they should consider whether they recognised the rights of property owners.

Professor Magennis said that the bill, on the whole, was so admirable in its conception that there was very little room for improvement. As an act of gratitude for the support which the Labour Party had given the farmers, a new party should arise—a coalition of Labourers and Farmers. He presumed that the first item on the programme would be the settlement of the dispute in Waterford.

If there was nothing else in the bill but its ingenious finance, it was deserving of praise at this juncture. He was surprised at the small amount of attention which the bill had received throughout the country, having regard to its far-reaching effects. When the bill was promised one might say that it was almost too good to be true. The Minister had displayed an extraordinary amount of knowledge in mastering every detail of the bill.

Mr. Darrell Figgis referred to the excellent spirit of compromise which was disclosed in the terms of the bill. A very vexed question had been compromised in a manner as near justness as was possible. It was a great achievement, and he congratulated the Minister on the ability and acumen which he had displayed.

The bill then passed its final stage, and Mr. Hogan thanked the Dail for the support given to the measure.

The report stage of the Electoral Abuses Bill was then taken and, without discussion, declared passed.

PUBLIC SAFETY BILL.

REASONS FOR INTERNMENT.

The House then took up the report stage of the Public Safety (Emergency Powers) Bill.

Mr. E. J. Duggan moved to delete from Section 3, Sub-Section 1, the words requiring the military authorities to "certify in writing that, for stated reasons," they were of opinion that a person should be detained in custody.

The Minister for Home Affairs said that in the Committee stage he had accepted, at the suggestion of Deputy Morrissey, an amendment to provide that a person should not be interned without a certificate from the particular officer to the effect that he believed that for a certain reason the arrest and detention of the person was necessary. He had since been informed by technical and professional people that if it were in the bill that something was to be done for a stated reason it would be open to courts to inquire into the sufficiency of the reason. To do something to make it competent for the courts to so inquire was contrary to the purport of the bill.

If this provision were kept in the bill there would be no way of making it outside the jurisdiction of the courts to inquire into these reasons. He gave the undertaking in his own behalf and of his department and of the Executive Council that in all cases reasons would be insisted on, and a certificate would be required. These records would be confidential and departmental, but in all cases the duty would lie on the officer who had taken on himself the responsibility of recommending interference with a citizen's liberty to state clearly and fully for the information of the Minister concerned the ground on which he had taken such action.

LABOUR LEADER'S VIEW.

Mr. Johnson said that if the words were deleted no one would have imposed on him the duty of finding out whether there were any sufficient reason for the detention of A.B. or C.D. The object of Deputy Morrissey's amendment was to ensure that somebody would at least have that responsibility. He could understand the Minister giving assurances that this or that would be done if they were at the beginning of a Parliament, but seeing that they were at the end the assurance could only make one smile.

Mr. O'Higgins said that it would be for the next Dail to ask for any undertaking they required for the next Executive Council. This bill was introduced to meet the situation that would arise when the courts refused to take the view of the military authorities that a state of war or armed rebellion prevailed.

They could not hold one of the very large number of internees for a day after a state of war or armed rebellion had been declared to be at an end, and it was necessary to obtain powers to hold all. It was necessary to trust the discretion which the Executive Council was supposed to possess so long as they held the confidence of the majority of the people.

Mr. O'Shannon said that he hoped that the Minister would not go back on his acceptance of Deputy Morrissey's amendment.

Mr. Gerald FitzGibbon, K.C., said that he was sorry it had been decided to take these words out. He was not convinced that the words could be used in the way the Minister feared. The Minister, however, had made it perfectly clear when he accepted Deputy Morrissey's amendment that he could only do so on the assurance that these certificates could be challenged by no one except himself or the military, and in the circumstances he was perfectly entitled to have them removed.

On a division the amendment was carried by 31 votes to 8 against.

A division was also taken on No. 7 amendment, which Mr. Duggan said was identical with the amendment just carried.

Mr. Johnson said that the principle was a bad one, and he was opposed to it.

The amendment was carried by 35 votes to 8 against.

STOLEN PROPERTY.

Mr. Thomas O'Connell moved in Section 10 (1)—which deals with the recovery of property representing stolen property or funds—to delete certain words and to substitute therefor the words, "if he is satisfied that such allegation is true."

Mr. O'Higgins said that the effect of the amendment would be to shift the onus of proof on the matter, which the section covered, from the person who was suspected of having acquired property wrongfully to the Executive. It would substantially alter the effect of the section, and was not acceptable.

On a division the amendment was defeated by 30 votes to 9.

Mr. Cathal O'Shannon moved an amendment to Section 11, which deals with the recovery of money in bank representing stolen property or funds.

Mr. O'Higgins said that the amendment was not acceptable. Large sums of money had been stolen during the past twelve months. Post offices had been robbed and valuable property had been looted, and if these were to be successfully traced they should ask more from an individual than merely to show that he was actually in possession and control of money or other property.

On a division the amendment was lost by 34 votes to 9.

Mr. Thomas Johnson moved to delete Section 12, which deals with the change of venue in criminal cases.

Mr. O'Higgins said that the deputy should remember that the lifetime of the bill was only six months, and the object of it was to deal with a special set of circumstances and with a situation from which they found themselves emerging. They could not ignore the possibilities of local recrudescences. Arms and explosives were secreted throughout the country, and all these things were calculated to deter local juries from the proper discharge of their duties. The Executive was the best judge of the conditions in any particular area.

The amendment was defeated by 32 votes to 10.

MANY DIVISIONS.

A feature of the debate was the number of divisions. Though the members of the Labour Party could never muster more than ten, they persisted in challenging a poll on amendments standing in their names.

At 6 o'clock, Mr. O'Higgins said that it might be necessary to sit after the official time that evening, as this bill was urgent. He, therefore, begged to move that the Standing Orders be suspended for that purpose.

Mr. Hogan seconded.

The Labour Party called for a division.

The motion was carried by 34 votes to 9.

Mr. Colahan moved an amendment to Section 12, which provided that the High Court "shall," on a certificate from the Attorney-General, as a matter of course change the venue of a trial as required in the Attorney-General's certificate. The deputy's amendment sought to make it discretionary with the Courts.

The Minister for Home Affairs said that the Attorney-General was, by the very nature of his position, a responsible officer of the State, and competent to know when a fair trial could be held within any particular area, and his certificate for a change of venue ought to be accepted. Very often the reasons which rendered it difficult or impossible to secure a fair trial within a particular area could not be fully stated, or were of such a nature that it would not be in the public interest to state them fully. He had in mind a particular case which had arisen in the Midlands.

RESPONSIBLE EXECUTIVE.

They were not dealing now with an arbitrary Government forced on the people of Ireland, but with an Executive responsible to the people through their representatives. If they were not to be trusted with such powers, then they ought not to be entrusted with responsibility. The difficulty he had in dealing with amendments to this bill was just that difficulty that he realised that the bill, in its nature and in the letter of its provisions, could be made an instrument of terrorism, and he had repeatedly asked deputies to remember that these powers had to be exercised by an Executive responsible to them there day by day.

The amendment was defeated by 33 votes to 9.

Mr. Thomas O'Connell moved to add to Section 13 a sub-section as follows:—

"Regulations made under this sub-section shall make provision for securing the proper sanitation of every prison, internment camp, or other place in which persons are detained, or in custody under this Act, and for enabling the persons detained therein to receive adequate medical, surgical and nursing attention and care, whenever needed, and for the inspection of every such prison, internment camp, or other place of detention, and the visiting of any person therein by any member of the Oireachtas."

Mr. Kevin O'Higgins said that portion of Deputy O'Connell's amendment was covered substantially by official amendments. The only portion not so covered was that providing for the visiting of any person by any member of the Oireachtas. This was the only portion unaccepted, and they proposed to contest it. Deputies could imagine the amount of false propaganda that would await every member of the Oireachtas who made such visits, if permitted. There was no more case for this than for allowing deputies to visit every Department and overhaul the whole Executive machinery.

The amendment was defeated by 32 votes to 9.

Mr. O'Higgins, referring to Mr. William O'Brien's amendment to Section 15, which deals with the preservation of the common law powers of the military forces, said that the effect of the deputy's amendment would be to put an end to the common law powers of the military—at least, where it overlapped the powers given by that Act, and probablp to put an end to it altogether. He regretted that in the present state of affairs he could not accept the amendment.

The amendment proposed to insert in Section 15, page 9, before the word "nothing," line 12, the words, "Save in respect of the powers expressly conferred, and the procedure expressly prescribed by this Act."

The amendment was rejected by 31 votes to 9.

COLONELS AND CAPTAINS.

Mr. O'Callaghan moved the substitution of the word "colonel" for that of "captain" in Section 16, page 9, line 22.

On a division the amendment was lost by 28 votes to 9.

On the motion of Mr. Duggan the word "captain" was deleted in favour of the word "commandant" in Section 16, page 9, line 22.

Mr. Johnson moved an amendment seeking to exclude from the Civic Guard and Dublin Metropolitan Police power to act against persons committing offences set out in the schedules of the Act.

The Minister for Home Affairs said that he could not agree that the crimes set out in the schedules of the Act should be excluded from the scope of the Civic Guard and the Dublin Metropolitan Police.

Mr. Johnson's amendment was defeated by 29 votes to 9.

Professor Thrift next rose to move a verbal amendment, and, addressing the Deputy Speaker (Mr. FitzGibbon), said that he had had a conversation with Deputy FitzGibbon, who had asked him in his (Deputy FitzGibbon's absence) to move the amendment for him. The amendment, which defined the ranks of the responsible military officers, was put and accepted.

Mr. T. O'Connell moved an amendment to Section 17 (Sub-section 2) to insert after the word "thereof" in line 38 the words "or until such earlier time as Dail Eireann may by resolution declare that public safety can be adequately maintained by the exercise of the powers vested in the civil authorities prior to the passing of this Act.

Mr. O'Higgins said that he contested this amendment on the ground that it was not necessary.

The amendment was defeated by 32 votes to 8.

Mr. McFerris moved in Part 2 of the schedule to the bill, paragraph 2, page 10, to insert before the word "having" the word "knowingly."

Mr. O'Higgins said that he hoped that this was a misprint. He would not like to insert in a respectable bill the words that appeared on the paper, "knowingly having possession without lawful authority." If a revolver was found in a man's trunk and if the man was able to satisfy the Court that he was not aware the weapon was in his trunk, the Court would consider it; but the Executive would be stultifying itself by taking the onus of proving guilty knowledge.

Again the division bell sounded at the call of the proposer, but his amendment was lost by 32 votes to 9.

UNDER ARMS.

Mr. Thomas O'Connell proposed in the same part of the schedule to delete the words "offensive weapon or instrument" and to substitute therefor the words "lethal firearm."

Mr. O'Higgins said that the object of the amendment was to change the definition of "under arms." He could not accept the amendment.

The amendment was lost without a division.

Mr. D. O'Callaghan moved to delete paragraph 10 in Schedule 2.

The paragraph was:—"Illicit distillation, or having possession or control of any illicitly distilled spirits, or any illicit still, or any articles or materials for illict distillation."

Mr. O'Higgins said that illicit distillation had become very serious in many counties in Ireland. Almost every unnatural crime committed in certain areas was within the zone of illicit distillation. A Civic Guard told him some time ago that he had seen children reeling along the road drunk from poteen. The illicit drink traffic would have to be stamped out.

The amendment was lost without a division.

An amendment by Mr. Colohan to delete paragraph 11, which referred to "selling, or offering, exposing, or having for sale any illicitly distilled spirits," was also lost.

On the motion that the bill do pass, Mr. Gavan Duffy drew attention to the wording of some of the sections, and asked that better qualifying words be inserted. As regards internment, he asked that the power of internment stop when the bill ceased to have effect.

Dealing with the military courts in Dublin, Mr. Gavan Duffy said that these courts were sitting illegally, because the ordinary courts were sitting in Dublin at the same time. He admired the spirit shown by the President in his speech of the day previous, but he asked would it be in conformity with the spirit that such an Act as the present should be placed on the Statute Book. During the debates not one word had been dropped from the Ministerial benches as to whether it was their intention to amend the Constitution in this respect.

AN END TO BITTERNESS.

President Cosgrave said that there was no intention in the bill or in any other legislative proposal brought forward to amend the Constitution. In any statement he (President) had made that he wanted to see an end to the bitterness, he never departed from it; but it was not possible to see an end to the bitterness and at the same time have the truth. Whatever was in the preamble of the bill was unfortunately the truth. He regretted that this was so. Last year for six months they had gone on with toleration and magnanimity to those opposed to them, and they knew how they had been treated. In the whole history of the country there never was a more deplorable period than from January to July last year. They had to take strong action and he had yet to learn of a war that was carried on without excesses on one side or the other.

The Government troops had shown great forbearance in their conduct When any complaints were made inquiries were instituted and action taken, but could the same be said of the other side when they were taxed with excesses. There had been no repudiation, no apology, no regret. That was not the spirit in which they could come to an agreement.

Mr. O'Higgins then moved that the bill now pass. He said that it was a fair warning to the potential robbers and "arsoneers." They would know what to expect if they were found guilty by a jury of their own countrymen.

The motion was agreed to, the Labour members having left the House and Mr. Gavan Duffy dissenting.

The Dail then adjourned at 8.45 until 3 o'clock to-day.

TO-DAY'S AGENDA.

This afternoon the Dail will take the second stage of the winding-up of Dail Eireann Courts Bill, and the first stage of the Defence Forces Temporary Provisions Bill. (This is a bill for providing for the defence of the Saorstat, and for matters incidental thereto.) The third report of the Committee on Procedure will be submitted. The Estimates for Public Services will be further discussed. There are ten questions on the Order Paper.

THE SENATE.

The Senate will sit to-morrow at three o'clock.

DAIL EIREANN COURTS.

Yesterday the text of the Dail Eireann Courts (Winding Up) Bill was issued.

Section 2 deals with the appointment of Judicial Commissioners and Assistant Commissioners for the purposes of the Act. These appointments will be made by the Governor-General on the advice of the Executive Council.

Every person appointed to be a Judicial Commissioner shall have been a Judge of the Dail Supreme Court, or a practising barrister of not less than ten years' standing, and every person appointed as Assistant Commissioner shall have been a Circuit Judge of a Dail Court, or shall be a practising barrister of not less than six years' standing, or a District Justice.

Under the provisions of the Act persons aggrieved have the right of appeal to the Commissioners against decrees registered in Dail Eireann Courts.

Conflicting orders of other Courts may be stayed by the Commissioners, and it shall not be lawful for any under sheriff or other officer or person to execute any judgment, decree, or order, the execution whereof has been stayed by the Commissioners.

The Commissioners may refer any issue of fact to the County or District Court.

NO PREMIUM BONDS.

MR. J. J. WALSH ON IRELAND'S FLOATING CAPITAL.

Speaking at the Dublin Rotary Club luncheon yesterday, the Postmaster-General (Mr. J. J. Walsh) said that in the brief period during which the Free State Post Office Savings Bank had been in operation, something like two millions of money had been lodged.

The Government had decided that for the present they would not resort to the premium bond system of raising a loan. The 15s. 6d. Certificates, which would be worth £1 in five years, afforded the small investors an excellent means of saving. They would receive 5¼ per cent., free of tax, on the money, and anyone who wanted his money back at any time, would receive it without delay.

The Government required money to make good the damage that had been done to the railways, house property, etc., during the last twelve months. It was roughly estimated that £20,000,000 over current revenue would be required this year. He believed that there were about twenty times as much floating capital in Ireland as the Free State Government would need for the next few years.

While that amount of money was available at home it would be suicidal to place a loan in either Great Britain or America, because these people in foreign countries were mere speculators and exploiters, who would desire the benefits which the Irish people could secure for themselves if they were wise.

Sir Thomas Robinson, in proposing a vote of thanks to the Postmaster-General, said that the business community would do all in their power to promote the object which the Government had in view, and they would encourage the wage-earners to participate in this splendid scheme.

Mr. J. C. M. Eason, in seconding, said that the possession of Savings Certificates would have a very steadying influence upon the whole community, whether from a political or economic point of view.

QUESTION OF DOMICILE.

(Court of Appeal, London.)

Yesterday in a judgment in the matrimonial case of Eustace v. Eustace it was decided that evidence of domicile in England was sufficient to give the Divorce Court jurisdiction to grant a decree of judicial separation.

The case came before their lordships on the appeal of Mrs. Gertrude Eustace from a judgment dismissing her petition for judicial separation.

The President of the Divorce Division, Sir Henry Duke, giving judgment, said that under the Matrimonial Cause Act, 1857, domicile, even without residence, gave the Court jurisdiction to decree judicial separation. There was in this case prima facie proof of domicile in England, and, therefore, there was jurisdiction to grant the relief sought, even though the respondent was not resident there.

Lords Justice Warrington and Atkin concurred.

The President, in reply to a question by Mr. Cotes Preedy, for the appellant, said that the appeal was allowed and a decree of separation granted.

Counsel also asked for the custody of the child of the marriage, but the President said that that had better be decided by the Court below.

DUBLIN SESSIONS CASES.

APPEAL AGAINST COUNTY RATES.

JUDGMENT FOR THE APPELLANT.

(Before the Recorder, Dublin.)

Arguments were resumed in the appeal brought by Charles S. Kettle, Chairman, County Dublin Farmers' Association, against the rate struck by the Dublin County Council.

Mr. Carrigan, K.C., Mr. Dickie, K.C., and Mr. James Henry (instructed by Mr. P. S. Rutherford) appeared for the appellant; Mr. H. D. Conner, K.C., Mr. T. Sullivan, K.C., and Mr. W. S. Shannon (instructed by Mr. Thomas Early) for the County Council.

Mr. Charles Kettle, of Newtown, St. Margaret's, County Dublin, a ratepayer on whom the rates were struck for the year 1923-24, contends (1) that these rates have been wrongfully struck on him, as the assessments are invalid and void; (2) that the whole of the said rates should be quashed and set aside; and (3) that it be directed that the County Council shall make a new rate, on the ground, among others, that the rates, orders and resolutions were bad, illegal and excessive, and in excess of jurisdiction.

Further, he contended that the expenditure on roads prepared by the Balrothery, Celbridge (No. 2), North Dublin, South Dublin, and Rathdown (No. 1) Rural District Councils, and approved by the County Council, had exceeded the limits allowed by law for such expenditure, and that the Council included in the estimate expenditure for work done in 1922-23, on estimates based on excessive payments for outdoor relief.

The Recorder said that he desired to decide this complicated question in a manner likely to give the least possible inconvenience to all the parties concerned. He wished to know how he was expected to make a new rate. Certainly, he had power to amend.

The figures showed that a rate not warranted by law had been struck, but there was no doubt this was done honestly by the present County Council, who, through their Clerk, had acted with perfect bona fides in the matter.

He could certainly determine the question of this rate in so far as it applied to the present applicant, and declare, what was an undoubted fact, that the rates, so far as he was concerned, were unlawful, and direct the rate to be made in accordance with the law.

Having reviewed the road estimates, the Recorder said that there was no question whatever that, as contrasted with the amounts authorised by the Local Government Department, the amounts actually estimated were enormously in excess.

Thus, in the case of Celbridge (No. 2) £5,000 was authorised, and it was proposed to expend £11,200. It was true that the general ratepayers should be responsible for the exceptional expenditure which arose from the blowing up and destruction of roads and bridges.

He was compelled to quash the rate, but he regretted to do so—the rate could not be made a legal one, and he declared it to be void and invalid, and directed the County Council to strike a rate in accordance with the law.

He allowed the appellant his costs.

COMPENSATION CLAIMS.

POWERS OF THE SHERIFF.

The interpleader action, in which Dr. Lorcan Sherlock, City Sub-Sheriff, is plaintiff, was heard. The case arose in an application for compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act, and in which the Recorder had granted an amount to a docker who had been injured during the unloading of a ship. The decree was duly lodged with the Sheriff, and when the latter went into possession the defendant's wife claimed the goods.

Dr. Sherlock, at the hearing on Friday last, emphasised the fact that the present system under the existing rules and regulations of the Court was slow, insufficient and expensive.

He himself had suggested a much shorter and more satisfactory method of testing claims made in the hope that the system of bogus declarations might be brought to an end.

The Recorder on the same occasion stated that he was in no way responsible for the existing rules and, in fact, had not been even consulted as to their drafting, and he thoroughly agreed with Dr. Sherlock, who had described the existing system as almost farcical.

The case had stood over until yesterday to afford the defendant a further opportunity of discharging his liability under evidence, and of giving the full compensation awarded to the workman.

At yesterday's hearing, Mr. Joseph O'Connor (instructed by Mr. J. H. Callan) and Mr. James Cawley (instructed by Mr. H. O'Hanlon) appeared for the applicants, and a settlement, satisfactory to the parties and agreed to by the Sheriff, was reached.

CYCLIST GETS DAMAGES.

Before the Recorder at Green street, yesterday, Joseph McKevitt, carpenter, Blackhorse lane, sued the Westbrook Taxi Co., 90 Parnell street, Dublin, for personal injuries received on the North Circular road, on 6th May last, through the alleged negligence of defendant's motor driver.

Mr. Joseph O'Connor appeared for applicant, who stated that on May 6th last he was cycling down Blackhorse lane at 7 a.m., and on seeing a motor coming from the direction of the Phœnix Park he turned to the left, and the motor caught the back portion of his bicycle and threw him to the ground, while the motor itself dashed into the cattle market wall. Witness was afterwards taken to hospital where eight stitches were inserted in his head. He was five weeks idle.

Cross-examined by Mr. Costello (instructed by Mr. J. R. Stritch) for the defendants, witness denied hearing the sound of a horn.

The driver of the car said that he was travelling at the rate of only 11 or 13 miles an hour. He did everything to avoid the accident, and sounded the horn before he reached Blackhorse lane.

His lordship awarded 20 guineas compensation and three guineas for his doctor.

LATE MR. MICHAEL BERGIN.

The Recorder referred to the great loss which that Court and the organised licensed trade had sustained by the death of Mr. Michael Bergin, solicitor. The vast interests involved in the licensing questions disposed of in that Court placed a great responsibility upon the professional experience of the legal advisers of their association.

Personally, his lordship wished to say that he deeply regretted the death. He had always found Mr. Bergin to be a man of unblemished honour; a man whose word could always be relied upon; a man with a high sense of professional propriety; and most able and skilful as a practitioner. He desired to convey his condolence to those near and dear to Mr. Bergin.

Mr. Furlong, as the senior member of the Sessions Bar, said that he desired on his own behalf and on that of his professional brethern, to join in the kindly and sympathetic expressions of the Recorder. They all esteemed Mr. Bergin as a personal friend and as a colleague.

Every play with a ghost in it is a bad play. —Mr. Conal O'Riordan.

DUKE OF LEINSTER.

ARGUMENTS ON POINT OF LAW TO STAND OVER.

(Court of Criminal Appeal, London.)

The case relating to the Duke of Leinster was down in the list for hearing yesterday. The Duke was found guilty at the Old Bailey on July 3 of obtaining credit without disclosing the fact that he was an undischarged bankrupt. The Recorder, Sir Ernest Wild, bound him over in his own recognisances of £200 to come up for judgment in twelve months if called upon. It was against this that the Duke appealed.

When the case was called on, Sir Edward Marshall Hall, K.C., said that he had to apply that the case might stand out of the list. He had the consent of the Director of Public Prosecutions. There was, he said, only a point of law for discussion on the effect of the verdict of the jury. It was purely academic now, as the defendant had served what sentence the Court had thought fit to pass on him, and the Recorder had invited them to obtain the opinion of the Court on the effect of the verdict as found.

In the circumstances he asked the Court to allow the case to go over the Long Vacation.

The Court granted the application.

Avoid Harmful Grit
Pepsodent curdles the film and removes it without harmful scouring. Its polishing agent is far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

Why So Pretty?
Analyze a beauty's beauty
Note how white teeth count

If you ever envy pretty teeth, let us show you how folks get them.

You see them everywhere to-day. They have brought to millions new charm and new beauty.

It is so the world over, for people are using a new cleaning method now. And largely by dental advice.

They fight film

Film makes teeth dingy—that viscous film you feel. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stops there.

Food stains, etc., discolour it, then it forms cloudy coats. Tartar is based on film. That's why beautiful teeth were seen less often than now.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth—the acid may cause decay. Tooth troubles came to nearly all.

Old ways inadequate

No ordinary tooth paste effectively combats film. So nearly everybody was affected more or less.

Then dental science, after long research, found two film combatants. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods by many careful tests. Then a new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. These two great film destroyers were embodied in it.

That tooth paste is called Pepsodent. It is daily used by careful people of some 50 nations now.

These things also

Dental research proved other things essential. So Pepsodent multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids as they form.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

Thus Pepsodent gives manifold power to Nature's great tooth-protecting agents.

This test will tell

Pepsodent quickly proves itself. The changes in a week will delight you.

Send this coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

This test may change the whole dental history of your home. Cut out the coupon now.

STEWARDS' CUP BETTING.

EPINARD FIRST FAVOURITE.

COS CANTERS HOME AT LEICESTER.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Monday Night.

There was some mild excitement at the call-over of the card on the Stewards' Cup at the Victoria Club this evening, when the champion French three-year-old, Epinard, was well supported and eventually closed favourite at 10 to 1. Earlier in the day I happened to meet accidentally Eugene Leigh, the Irish-American, who trains Epinard at Maisons Laffitte. He told me that he had arrived at Folkestone in the morning with Epinard, who is to complete his Stewards' Cup preparation on the Sussex downs.

With him came his stable jockey, Haynes, who will ride Epinard in the Stewards' Cup. At first sight Epinard appears heavily burdened, for 8st 6lb. is a tremendous weight for a three-year-old in a sprint, in which he has to meet the best of the older horses. If we look at the handicap carefully, however, we can see that Epinard meets Crowdennis on a few pounds better terms than weight-for-age.

I am not betraying any secret when I say that Epinard is looked on as a quite exceptional colt. Leigh, whom many people will remember as having trained here in the early days of what has come to be known as the American invasion, has a particularly shrewd idea of what is required to win a Stewards' Cup, and one may safely assume that he has not brought Epinard across from France solely with the idea that the Channel air would do him good.

CALL-OVER HAPPENINGS.

Some remarkable things happen at these calls-over of the card. For instance, Laughter is reported as having been backed at 50 to 1 for the Stewards' Cup. As a matter of fact, Mr. J. B. Joel, her owner, some time ago decided to send her to the stud, and she leaves Charles Morton's stables at Wantage to-morrow morning for her owner's place at Childwickbury. Next to Epinard to be backed this evening was Ruysdael—the horse who will be remembered as having come so near beating Soldennis in the Ayr Gold Cup last year. The only one of Mr. Perase's candidates backed was Zanoni, who attracted a little attention at his quoted odds of 20 to 1.

COS WINS HER RACE.

Cos won her race all right at Leicester, although it was over a mile and a quarter, and she has been assumed to be a non-stayer. The most surprising thing about it was her price, for the ring only asked for fractional odds, and she only had to beat the thick-winded Roger de Busli, who was giving 17lbs., and the very moderate Toyotama. She gave her backers a terrible fright when she swerved at the start and lost a good six lengths. Weston, who rode her, is a wonderful jockey, and he made no attempt to hustle the filly, but let her just make up the ground gradually. She did so to such good purpose that she was able to pass Roger de Busli after they had compassed a mile, and then go on to win in a canter by half a dozen lengths.

The rest of the racing at Leicester does not seem to have been very interesting. Bridge of Dun won the Prince of Wales' Plate, worth £500, starting at 100 to 8, and beating some useful horses. Captain Bewicke let him go to Mr. R. R. Jeffrey after he had won a selling race at Gatwick in May, and it is not often that this trainer lets such a useful horse as Bridge of Dun appears to be leave him in this fashion. Mr. Kenyon's new purchase, Up Garryowen, ran in this race, but never showed, and finished last.

TO-DAY'S CARD.

The racing at Leicester to-morrow should be good, although none of the best class candidates will run for the Leicestershire Oaks. Out of a moderate lot I choose CHERRY BROOK to win. The Evington Handicap shold go to METEORIC, while the LUTE GELDING looks a fairly good thing for the Sutton Selling Plate.

LONDON BETTING—YESTERDAY.

A fair amount of preliminary wagering was transacted at last evening's Stewards' Cup call-over. The French colt, Epinard, was backed to win £13,000, and became favourite at 10's. Of the others backed, Silver Grass, The Night Patrol, Jarvie, and Suryakumari were in some request, and Zanoni had a backer. What else was done can be gleaned from the appended return. Details:—

CURRAGH.

TO-DAY'S SELECTIONS.

The racing at the Curragh this week should reach a capital standard, as the programme on each of the three days over which the meeting extends contains some important events, and the participation of several English-trained horses, both in the Oaks and some of the other races, will impart considerable interest to the proceedings. Sunday night's rain was very welcome, though a good deal more would be necessary to render the ground as yielding as could be wished, but the going on the Anglesey course is not so very hard, and fair-sized fields will be seen out. The chief item on to-day's card is the Drogheda Memorial Stakes, which looks a reasonably good thing for

TO-DAY'S SELECTIONS.

There is every appearance on paper of some excellent racing to-day, but it is to be feared that the chief race, the Leicestershire Oaks, will cut up rather badly. Neither Concertina nor Splendid Jay run for Manton, and Shrove and Tricky Aunt will also be absentees. With the best of the entry gone, the race becomes rather commonplace and may be won by Quits, Lady of the Rose, or Crispena. The first-named has little or no form to her credit, having last time out run unplaced to Forest Glade and Cherry Brook. All the same, I feel sure she is a useful filly of whom we have not yet seen the best. Lady of the Rose is undoubtedly moderate, but the race will not require a great deal of winning, and I have noticed her running prominently in her last few outings. She is quite a nice stamp of filly, and may be now approaching her best. Crispena has on one or two occasions been backed like a certainty only to disappoint badly. Still, she ran sufficiently well on one or two occasions to suggest a possibility here, and, if running, she will I think prove about the best of a moderate lot. Selections:—

Sutton Plate—Juvelca.
Appleby Plate—Young Visiter.
Evington Handicap—Meteoric.
Leicestershire Oaks—Crispena; if absent, Lady of the Rose.
Wistow Hall Plate—Golden Bud.
Tower Sweepstakes—Torpille.

SPORTING PARAGRAPHS.

The Aga Khan heads the list of winning owners in England to date with £18,340, Lord Derby coming next with £18,157. Amongst the sires, Tracery (£26,305) leads the way, with Lemberg (£24,246) second, and The Tetrarch (£21,887) third.

A general meeting of the Turf Club will be held at the Stand House, Curragh, to-day, immediately after the second race has been run.

The Governor-General has signified his intention of visiting the Curragh to-morrow to see the race for the Irish Oaks, which promises to be a very interesting contest.

Sir John William Kelk, who died on March 22, aged 72, left unsettled property of the gross value of £392,493, with net personalty £390,246. He left £2,000 to his trainer, William Arthur Jarvis, of Sackville House, Newmarket.

Jockeys mounts at Leicester to-day include:—Smyth, Lute gelding and Golden Bud; Jelliss, Santaquest; Weston, Golden Mesh, and H. Leach, Teesdale.

MODEL YACHT RACING.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—While on a recent visit to Llandudno, I spent some very pleasant afternoons watching model yacht racing on an artificial lake, which was specially constructed by the Town Commissioners for the purpose. Regattas were held, and cups and other prizes were offered by the local Model Yacht Racing Club. Similar clubs, I understand, exist in most of the English cities.

We, in Dublin, are fortunate enough to have a lake in Herbert Park, where sailing is permitted, but little advantage is taken of the opportunity offered for indulging in this pastime. May I ask if any of your readers would be willing to form a Model Yacht Racing Club in Dublin?—Yours, etc.,

"MODEL YACHTSMAN."

BALLSBRIDGE BLOODSTOCK SALES, 1924.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Your reference to the re-organisation of the arrangements for next year's bloodstock sales must not be read as emanating from the Royal Dublin Society. The dates of the 1924 Horse Show have been fixed by the Society in co-operation with the Council of Aonach Tailteann, but no other subject associated with next year's Show has yet been considered.—Yours, etc.,

EDWARD BOHANE, Director.

LEINSTER V. UNITED SERVICES.

Leinster lost the toss in their opening match of their Devonshire tour at Mount Wise yesterday, when they had not so strong a side as usual. The home side batted first on a fast wicket, and compiled 259 in three hours before declaring. Rapkin made top score, which included twelve boundaries, and Kempster came out best of the Leinster bowlers with four wickets for 62. Leinster had an hour and a half's batting, and lost 6 wickets for 76 runs. Score:—

CRICKET.

DUBLIN UNIVERSITY V. WEST INDIES.

Owing to bad light and drizzling rain the start in the match in the College Park yesterday between Dublin University and West Indies was delayed for nearly an hour. Altogether there was four hours and thirty-five minutes' cricket, and in that time 19 wickets fell for an aggregate of 260 runs. It was, as a matter of fact, a colourless day's cricket, the batting being devoid of feature; but the visitors' bowling and fielding was exceptionally good, and Trinity also did well in the field.

A. P. Kelly and Heaslip opened the batting for Trinity, but only four runs had been scored when Kelly was leg before to the visitors' fast bowler, Francis, and at the lunch interval, which followed a stoppage through rain, the score was 30 for 2 wickets, Heaslip having been bowled by Francis for a dozen. Half the side were out for 45 in an hour and twenty minutes, Ganly being at the wickets for an hour for his 7 runs. Seven men were out for 59, but J. P. Pigot and M'Causland improved matters near the close of the innings, which realised 100, having extended over two hours and twenty minutes. Francis, who was on for two hours and a quarter, took 5 wickets for 42, and Browne, whose 24 overs included 12 maidens, claimed 4 for 37. The visitors had two hours and a quarter's batting, and at the close of play had scored 160 for 9 wickets. At one period they looked good for a much bigger score, for after Challenor and Tarilton had put on 36 for the first partnership 105 was on the board for 5 wickets, the century having taken an hour and a quarter, but although Small batted finely for his 47 nine men were, as stated, out at the close for 160. Play will be resumed to-day at 11.30. Score:—

WARWICKSHIRE V. LANCASHIRE.

Not a ball could be bowled at Edgbaston yesterday. With six wickets in hand Lancashire are already 51 runs ahead.

YORKSHIRE V. GLOUCESTERSHIRE

Rain began to fall in Sheffield at half-past nine yesterday morning, and though never heavy, it continued with but little cessation throughout the day, and prevented any cricket. Gloucestershire on Saturday had completed their first innings for 183, and Yorkshire scored 63 for two wickets.

MIDDLESEX V. HAMPSHIRE.

Another hundred by Mead was the outstanding feature of the cricket at Lord's yesterday, and as a consequence of it Hampshire established a strong position against Middlesex. Mead occupied three hours and a half over his hundred—his sixth of the season—but in the last hour (he being last out) he obtained forty-five runs, and altogether hit one five and eleven fours. Score:—

MIDDLESEX—1st Inns., 279; HAMPSHIRE—1st Inns. 82 (1).

SCOTLAND V. WALES.

The second day's cricket in the Scottish-Welsh match produced a Scottish débâcle in the first innings and a fine effort to recover in the second. Rain fell overnight and, while the wicket was perfect, play had not progressed far when it became evident that the Scottish batsmen were in difficulties. With the exception of Fergusson, none of the batsmen showed any confidence. The innings only lasted an hour and forty minutes, and left the Scotsmen 296 behind. Following on, the home batsmen made a much better show, but Wales won by an innings and 111 runs. Score:—

WALES—1st Inns., 357; SCOTLAND—1st Inns., 6 (2).

FENDER'S DOUBLE ACHIEVEMENT.

Scoring 140 for once out in the Surrey and Kent match at Blackheath yesterday, P. G. Fender raised his aggregate for the season to 1,005. He has also taken 109 wickets, and the Surrey captain enjoys the distinction of being the first to accomplish the double performance this season.

MEETING OF ADVISORY COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Advisory Committee at Lords yesterday afternoon it was agreed to let the question of scoring in the County Championship (in respect of which Yorkshire had put forward a proposal) stand over until the next meeting, which will be held about the middle of October. The proposal by Notts to have the season's fixtures arranged by a committee instead of by the secretaries was lost.

The Newfoundland Power and Paper Company, Limited, originally known as the Newfoundland Products Corporation, Limited, was incorporated in 1915 under the Company Law of Newfoundland, and owns valuable water rights and land and extensive timber limits in the colony. Sir W. G. Armstrong, Whitworth and Co., Ltd., of Elswick Works, Newcastle-on-Tyne, have recently entered into a contract for the construction of a complete electric power development, with the requisite dams, headways, canal, and pipe lines, and for the construction and equipment of pulp and paper mills, with the requisite power station and installations for operating the same, at a cost of £1,755,538 sterling, and $6,489,459 (Newfoundland).

The net proceeds of this issue are to be expended primarily on the works to be carried out in Newfoundland and for the general purposes of the Company, including the payment of interest on Stock of this issue for a period of two years. The issue of the "A" Mortgage Debenture Stock has recently been made, and the proceeds of that issue will be applied primarily in the purchase of plant, machinery, and materials manufactured in the United Kingdom and other expenditure incidental thereto, and in providing for the payment of interest on that Stock for the period of two years.

This issue of "B" Mortgage Debenture Stock will be secured by a trust deed in favour of the Law Debenture Corporation, Ltd., as trustees, constituting a specific charge on the whole of the freehold and leasehold properties of the Company, and a floating charge on the remainder of the undertaking and assets of the Company, for the time being, both present and future, including uncalled capital, subject only to the "A" Mortgage Debenture Stock, and ranking immediately thereafter.

The Register of the Stock will be kept at the Bank of England.

The Stock will be transferable by ordinary transfer deed in sums of £100, or multiples thereof.

Interest warrants will be transmitted by post.

Applications, which must be accompanied by a deposit of £5 per cent., will be received by the Company's Bankers, the Bank of England, at the Loans Office, 5 and 6 Lombard street, E.C. 3. Prospectuses and Forms of Application may be obtained at that Office and at any of the Branches of the Bank of England.

In case of partial allotment the balance of the amount paid as deposit will be applied towards payment of the first instalment. Should there be a surplus after making that payment such surplus will be refunded by cheque.

Instalments may be paid in full after allotment under discount, at the rate of £2 per cent. per annum. In the case of full payments made before the 9th August, 1923, discount will only be allowed from the latter date.

Default in the payment of any instalment by its proper date will render the deposit and any instalments previously paid liable to forfeiture, and the allotment to cancellation.

Scrip certificates to bearer, with coupon attached, for the interest payable 15th January, 1924, will be issued in exchange for the allotment letters. Fully-paid scrip certificates may be registered on and after the 28th August, 1923.

A commission of 5/- per £100 will be paid to bankers and stockbrokers on allotments made in respect of applications bearing their stamp.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES.

IRISH STOCK EXCHANGES.

DUBLIN.

FUNDS UNDER BEST. BANKS IRREGULAR. ROYALS SCARCE. RAILS IRREGULAR. TOBACCOS HIGHER.

There was a quiet and, in the main, uneventful day's business put through on 'Change. Most of the changes in Home Funds were favourable at one time, but Conversion Loan was on offer, and later less support for others was shown. Only odd lots of Banking securities changed hands. There was inquiry for Bank Stock and Provincials at slightly higher prices. Royals did not quote, but were scarce, and, in fact, did not offer near last price. The company's year will end at the close of the present month. Munster and Leinsters and Nationals were both dull and lower. Breweries closed quiet, but firm, and the same remark applies to City Steam Stock at last price quoted. Marconi Ord. were dull. Home Railway Ord. Stocks were irregularly disposed. Great Northern and Great Southern were harder, but Midland Great Western was rather pressed for sale and closed materially lower. Textiles were quiet, but Tobacco Shares were firmer. Shell Transport further slumped to 69s.

In the Funds War Loan 5 p.c. rose 1/16 to 101 1/16, and then fell to 101 1/16; ditto 4 p.c. ⅛ to 100⅞ ¾, Irish Land 3 p.c. ⅛ to 65¼, and Local Loans ⅜ to 66⅞; but Conversion Loan fell ¼ to 79, while Consols repeated 59¼ and War Loan 4½ p.c. 96. Guaranteed Land 2¾ p.c. fell ½ to 51½ at the later market.

Banks were apparently almost idle. Bank Stock rose ½ to 245 x.d. and Provincials ½ to 22½, but Munster and Leinsters fell ⅛ to 8 1/16 and Nationals ¼ to 20. Only odd or broken lots changed hands. Royals were wanted at 13¼ ½, without being so quoted, against 13 1/16, last price, but did not offer even at a higher level.

In Breweries, etc., Guinness Ord. repeated 36½, and then eased to 36 7/16, while John Power and Son Pref. rose 3d. to 21s. 3d. Dublin Distillers Ord. and Pref. did not change hands, despite the notification of the final dividend statement showing no change in dividends.

City Steam Stock again quoted 143.

Marconi Ord. fell 3d. to 44s.

Home Railway Ord. Stocks varied. Great Northern rose ½ to 63 and Great Southern and Western ¼ to 49½, but Midland Great Western fell away 1¼ to 37 36¾. Pre-Ord. issues failed to quote.

In Trams Dublin United Ord. repeated 7 and Provincial Pref. 40s. for an odd lot.

Parent Tyres were idle. The Pref. closed round about 12s. 6d. and the Ord. 16s. 17s., but the Deferred fell 9d. to 28s. 6d.

In Bakery Shares Bernard Hughes realised 42s. 6d., and in Drapery Shares Arnott Ord. at 5½ and Pim Bros. Ord. at 73s. 9d. show no change.

Manufacturing Shares were a little irregular on eve of the settlement, of which 26th inst. is the "account day." British-American Tobacco rose 6d. to 99s. 9d., and Imperials realise 71s. 6d. 71s. 9d. 72s. 71s. 10½d. Coats Ord. were realised, and eventually eased off to 68s. 7½d. 68s. 9d., and Cottons fell 6d. to 53s. Courtaulds were firmer at 63s. 9d., with a later rise to 64s. 3d. Lever Bros. 8 p.c. Pref. realised 21s. 1½d. and the 7 p.c. Pref. 21s. 9d. Goulding Debs. remain at 75s.

In Trading, etc., Irish Times Pref. rose 9d. further to 64s., and then eased to 63s. 3d. for a small lot, and Hibernian Fire repeated 5s.

Shell Transports fell 1s. 6d. to 69s.

FIRM STOCKS.

SOUTH MANCHURIANS AT A DISCOUNT.

(FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT AND THE FINANCIAL NEWS OF TO-DAY.)

With quite a fair volume of business passing, the favourable tendency which manifested itself in the Stock Markets last week continued to be in evidence yesterday. Firmness was the general tone, especially in the gilt-edged section, where the leaders were again advanced, although closing prices were in some instances at a lower level than the best of the day. Home Rails were, in general, an uninteresting market, exhibiting few price alterations, and maintaining a steady firmness. Great Westerns Def. were an exception by easing, and Metropolitans showed strength. Steadiness was also the keynote in the Foreign Bond market. The French Government and Railway Loans went rather harder, and gains ranged from ⅛ to ½. Brazils were on the irregular side, and Chinese were dull. Dealings began in the new South Manchurian Railway issue which, to the general surprise, opened at round about ¾ discount, and closed ½ discount.

LONDON STOCKS STEADY.

GENERAL RISE IN PRICES.

The Stock Markets opened with gilt-edged securities in good demand. Business was on a fairly extensive scale in Government issues, but in other markets the tone, while steady, was inactive. There was nothing to greatly affect Foreign issues, and Home Rails moved within narrow limits. Industrials were firm in places, and Mines were generally steady. Victory Bonds rose a point, and Funding Loan, War Loan 3½ p.c., and India 3 p.c., 3½ p.c. and 5½ p.c. were all ½ better. Conversions at 79 showed another rise of ¼, but 4½ p.c. War Loan lost ⅛. War Loan 5 p.c. repeated 100¾, and Consols were unchanged at 59. Australian 5½ p.c. added a point, and other Colonial issues were firm, without movement.

In the FOREIGN MARKET French Loan 5 p.c. improved ½ to 27½, the 4 p.c. being unchanged at 20½. Brazilian and Chinese issues were dull, and usually closed with a loss of a point on the day. Japan New 5 p.c. 1907 at 89 showed a decline of 1, and Peruvian Pref. receded to the extent of ½.

HOME RAILS were inactive, but the tone, though quiet, was steady. Metropolitans rose ½ to 69, Metropolitan Districts added the same fraction to 48½, and Southern Pref.-Ord. improved ½ to 87.

Irregular conditions ruled among COLONIAL and FOREIGN RAILS. Buenos Ayres and Pacifics rose 1½, and Central Argentines also added 1½. Buenos Ayres Great Southern and Buenos Ayres and Western both rose 1, but San Paulo fell 2, and Central Uruguay, Bahia Blanca, and Argentine Great Western were all ½ lower. Trunks and Canadian Pacifics were unaltered.

OIL SHARES IRREGULAR.

At the commencement of business yesterday a distinctly nervous tendency prevailed in the Oil Share market, fears being entertained that liquidation might be encountered. As a matter of fact, although a certain amount of Stock did come out, there was no pronounced selling pressure, and in the afternoon a recovery occurred. Despite the rally in the late dealings, the price movements finally recorded were of an irregular character.

Royal Dutch were finally a trifle lower. A favourable impression was created by the announcement that the Royal Dutch is shipping oil from California to its refinery in the Dutch East Indies for refining. In view of the low price ruling for Californian crude oil, this procedure appears to be a wise one and should result in satisfactory refining profits.

Mexican Eagles, following early dulness, made a good rally, and firmness continued to be displayed by the 8 p.c. Pref. Shares. During the week ended July 7 oil companies in Mexico produced 3,049,000 barrels of oil, as compared with 3,019,000 barrels in the preceding week. Closing prices:—

LONDON MINING MARKET.

LACK OF SPECULATIVE INTEREST.

While the account now in course of settlement has not been productive of any great activity in Mining shares, markets have exhibited steadiness, and movements, as a rule, have been slight. The general charge for accommodation was 5½ to 6½ per cent, and practically all bargains were continued on this basis. Nearly all the leading Kaffirs made up at within a small fraction of the level of a fortnight previously, but Government Mines were ⅛ higher at 5 13/16, and De Beers Def. were ½ to the good at 13⅝.

Thanks to the maintenance of strength by the gilt-edged market, an air of cheerfulness prevailed, but there was a woeful lack of speculative interest, and in the Kaffir section business was again on a very small scale.

Most of the movements recorded, however, were in favour of holders, and among the leaders, Rand Mines, Johnnies, Randfontein, Anglo-American and Geduld were all better, while Generals were helped materially by the issue of the full report and accounts. Closing prices:—

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

New York appears to be convinced (says the Evening Standard) that some deal is on in connection with the B.A.T. Co. Hence the intermittent demand for the shares. Rumour hints at the company taking a big interest in the Tobacco Products Corporation, which is also a Duke concern of some importance. How this, assuming anything tangible develops, will benefit the B.A.T. Co. does not transpire.

Circulars setting out the terms on which policies in the ordinary branch of the City Life Assurance Company, now in liquidation, can be continued with the British General Insurance Company will reach policy-holders in the course of the next few days. The British General will issue a new policy for a specified amount without medical examination at the same premium and upon the same conditions as the City Life policy. In respect of a whole life policy for £100 on which five annual premiums have been paid to the City Life, the British General offers a policy of £87. For a 30-year endowment assurance on which ten annual premiums have been paid, a British General policy for £65 is offered. These specimen figures, and the others that will be found in the schedule, the British General Insurance Company states: "are the guaranteed minimum, and the sum assured will be increased when the amount of the life fund has been realised and received from the liquidator."

Widespread disappointment has been caused in the Transvaal by the announcement that there is little likelihood that any cheap trips to England will be arranged in connection with the Empire Exhibition.

THE MONEY MARKET.

CREDIT SUPPLIES GOOD.

Exceedingly quiet conditions prevailed in loanable credit, but, nevertheless, the volume of business going on was remarkably small. It was realised that the present ease is more or less artificial, and, therefore, not to be trusted. Borrowers were able to get surplus balances for the night in small lots as cheap as 1¾ p.c., day-to-day money being 2-2¼, except with the banks, where it was 2½, the same as for fixtures. Now and again money was offering for a week at 2¼ p.c.

The tendency of discount quotations was not quite so firm. Fine three months' bank bills were 3⅛-3¼ p.c., while the new Treasuries were offered at 3, with very few buyers about. September bills were being taken in small quantities at 2⅞ p.c., August being nominally 2¾.

Gold was unchanged at 89s. 8d. per oz. Silver rose 1/16d. per oz. for spot and nominal. Silver rose 1/16d. per oz. for forward delivery to 31⅛d. and 30 13/16d. respectively.

Argentine dollars had a further sharp recovery to 40⅞-41, reacting to 40 11/16-40 13/16. Brazilian milreis were inclined to sag at 5 15/32-5 17/32. Francs were better, with the rate on Paris 77.05-77.15 and on Belgium 93.10-93.20, while Italian lire improved to 105¼-105⅜. Sterling was firm on New York at 4.59½-4.59⅝, while German marks, in which there was not much going on, were quoted 1,700,000-1,800,000. Rupees were dull at 1s. 4 3/32d.-1s. 4⅛d., and Japanese yen were steady at 2s. 1⅞d.-2s. 1½d., but Shanghai hardened to 3s. 0¾d. The following are closing quotations:—

INDUSTRIALS QUIET.

Very quiet conditions ruled in the Miscellaneous and Industrial markets yesterday, and this was not surprising, in view of the fact that the carry-over takes place to-day. Business continued on a small scale, and, although one or two of the leaders met with support and registered improvements, movements, as a rule, revealed no decided tendency.

Apart from the renewed weakness of Workman Clark Debs., which were offered at 65, owing to fears that the interest due on August 1 will not be met, little of interest transpired in Iron and Steel Shares.

Bank Shares were irregular, but Insurances displayed firmness. Dealings commenced in the Union Cold Storage 6 p.c. Prefs. at round about 1s. discount. It is reported that the underwriters have been left with about 60 per cent. of the issue. The new J. Lyons 7 p.c. Prefs. were also dealt in for the first time at round 24s. 9d.

SATISFACTORY RESULTS.

The directors of the Tyre Investment Trust, Ltd., in their report to February 28 last, state that the dividends, debenture and mortgage interest, royalties, etc., for the year amount to £206,583. Deduct management and general expenses, directors' fees, reserve for taxation, and debenture and other interest, £75,395; profit, £131,188; add balance brought in, £69,303—Total, £200,491. Deduct dividends paid for one year and six months to February 28, 1923, Preference dividend, £105,000; Preferred Ordinary dividend, £82,500, leaving a balance to be carried forward (subject to Corporation Profits Tax) of £12,991.

The investments of the company consist of its holdings in the Dunlop Rubber Company (Far East), Ltd.; the Dunlop Rubber Company (China), Ltd.; the Dunlop Rubber Company (Straits Settlements), Ltd.; and the Dunlop Tire and Rubber Goods Company, Ltd., of Canada.

During the year an issue was made by the company of £200,000 First Mortgage Deb. Stock.

The Boards of the Far Eastern and Canadian companies regard the results achieved during the past year as satisfactory, in view of the depressed trading conditions which have existed.

The Inland Revenue authorities have notified the company of their intention to appeal against the decision of the Special Commissioners, given in the company's favour, in November, 1920, on the questions of liability for Excess Profits Duty, and, acting under advice of counsel, this company intends to resist the appeal.

The ordinary general meeting will be held at Essex Hall, Essex street, Strand, London, W.C., on July 31, at noon.

A message from Malta states that the Third Destroyer Flotilla has arrived there to relieve the seventh Destroyer Flotilla, which will leave for home shortly.

DUNLOP ANNIVERSARY

DEVELOPMENT OF ROAD TRANSPORT.

A large party of motor experts and newspaper men went down to Birmingham yesterday on a visit to the great Dunlop factory at Fort Dunlop, where a celebration took place in honour of the thirty-fifth anniversary of the first Dunlop pneumatic tyre patent. The visitors on arrival were conducted through what seemed to be endless miles of workshops, machinery rooms and stores, and among other things were shown avenues of four and a half miles of tyres in store. Exhaustive tests were made of tyres for the benefit of the visitors, and they were enabled to watch the making of a tyre from the assembling of the necessary parts. There are about ten thousand workers employed in the works, and an explanation was given of the methods adopted by the Welfare Body to promote their happiness and comfort. It was to be noted that all the workers looked happy, and were performing their tasks apparently without supervision. Sir Eric Geddes presided at a luncheon given to the visitors and made a very interesting speech.

Sir Eric said—I would like to contrast today's conditions with the conditions in 1888, when the first pneumatic tyre was patented. Then mechanical road transport was ordinarily confined to the old steam tram and the clumsy, big "ordinary" cycle, and we looked with some derision and some curiosity at the first specimens of what was then called the "safety." Commercial road transport has a great and growing place in the industrial world; saving from breakage by handling, saving in handling, saving in packing and celerity are among the reasons which have brought it into favour. It has been estimated that the world posseses fifteen million motor cars, the United States of America possessing some twelve million of these; and the motor industry, including the manufacturers of accessories, of which tyres are the most important, now ranks as one of the world's greatest industries. Taking the United States of America alone, and that country dominates the motor-car situation, I was authentically told—although I cannot vouch for the figures myself—that the capital locked up in the motor industry in the United States is equal to the total capital of the iron and steel industry, and that with the coming of road transport the United States have spent more on new roads in the last twenty-five years than the total capital on all kinds of property vested in railroads.

Now, what has brought about this marvellous development in thirty-five years? Inventiveness generally; but I think I am not claiming too much for the pneumatic tyre when I say that, as the common feature of almost all road transport, it is equal to, or greater than, any other factor, and this all dates from the first practicable pneumatic tyre invented by the late Mr. J. B. Dunlop. I am told by those who knew him that the original idea was born of a desire to save a child from the jolts which the rough road gave him when riding his juvenile machine fitted with solid rubber tyres.

The story of the Dunlop Rubber Company is the story of road transport as we now know it.

Perhaps, our national self-control and fortitude has been created in the last twenty years by the will-power necessary to at all times keep below the twenty miles an hour. Sometimes our will-power gives way, or we estimate speed on a slightly different basis to the estimate of the blue-coated guardian of the law, and then we suffer. But that twenty-mile speed limit took no account of brake-power or of the marvellously improved frictioning of the modern tyre. With the improvement in brakes and the improvement in the non-skid quality of tyres, the twenty-mile speed limit is becoming more and more obsolete and ludicrous.

We have got a durability in tyres never dreamt of in the days before the war, and in the best type of construction which you have seen to-day, the straight-sided tyre, which is almost universally used for the larger passenger vehicles in America, the elimination of that most irritating of all troubles—bead trouble—which is unavoidable in the beaded-edge type of tyre commonly in use in this country.

Dealing with the activities of this company to-day, and looking somewhat to the future, you will have seen from an inspection of the mills some indication of the vastness of the Dunlop enterprise. Our publicity makes a special feature of British tyres for British cars, and for every other car in Great Britain and, we hope, in Ireland. Approximately 95 per cent. of British cars standardise Dunlop tyres to-day. Owing to the tariff arrangements of other countries we have been forced to manufacture abroad—in France, Germany and America, apart altogether from the Dunlop factories in the Dominions and Japan; but America, with her enormous production, and the Continent (Germany, France and Italy), with their depreciated exchanges and no tariff on tyres into this country as there is on motor cars, can, with the low wages paid and low taxation compared with our burdens, put tyres into this country cheaper than the British tyre-manufacturer can make them, and with every drop in exchange that position becomes more accentuated. It follows that we could, in fact, import tyres to this country from French and German factories and make more money than we can upon the same tyres manufactured in Birmingham, and this in spite of the greater efficiency of the Birmingham worker. Needless to say, we do not do so. Every tyre sold in this country by us is British-built, but there are markets in Europe and elsewhere where we are absolutely shut out from supplying as we used to do from Birmingham, because of the exchange difficulty and tariffs against us. Is it too much to ask that the British motorist should be asked to insist upon having British-made tyres, unless he is satisfied for himself that he cannot get as good value for his money as he can for foreign tyres? That is all that the British tyre-manufacturers ask of him.

OUTFITTING at THE HOUSE for MEN

87 Grafton Street as a Man's Outfitting Shop is second only to "The House for Men" as a Man's Clothing Shop. To get the fullest benefit buyers must match colours and shades of clothing with correct tones in Outfitting. It is easy to spend considerable sums on dress with but limited success. It is just as easy to dress effectively on a comparatively small outlay.

"The House for Men" devotes much time and thought to the needs of men. This week's display of Shirts, Ties, Socks and Handkerchiefs is the result of much care, and reflects in a small way what is being achieved by this little Store.

The New Sea Island Silk—various designs and colours—in Shirts and Underwear, whilst little more than ordinary cotton price, are most effective.

The material is good, the designs are good, the shades are good, and the price is not high. Take the first opportunity to see these wonderful Shirts, Pyjamas and Underwear.

W. J. KELLY,
87 GRAFTON STREET.
